Roman History Lecture

— Carol Horning Stacey —

Dr. Regina Gee of Montana State University will speak on "Fragmented Histories and the History of Fragments: the Villas of Oplontis at Torre Annuziata, Italy" at the NW Museum of Arts and Culture (MAC) on Thursday, February 7th, at 6:30pm. The lecture is presented by the Archeological Institute of America and is free to the public.

The lecture explores the ancient history and modern re-emergence of two ancient Roman sites of the seaside town of Oplontis: Villa A, a sprawling luxury villa with over 100 surviving rooms. The site was buried by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in AD 79.

Classic Comedy at Civic

— Carol Horning Stacey —

Kauffman and Hart's "You Can't Take It With You" opens at the Spokane Civic Theatre. The many characters in this comedy live life to its fullest in a big New York home. Mother paints, one daughter lives to dance on her toes, and fireworks are the hobby of choice for the basement dwellers. But the time has come for the working-girl daughter to introduce her boyfriend's socialite parents to her eccentric kin. What could go wrong?

"You Can't Take It With You" will continue Thursdays through Saturdays at 7:30pm and Sundays at 2pm through February 18th.

Downstairs in the Civic's Studio the show is Shelagh Stephenson's "The Memory of Water" playing Thursdays through Sundays ending February 10th. The story is centered around funeral arrangements, a highly controversial matter to the characters in what has been hailed as a hilarious black comedy. The box office number is 509-325-2507.

Avista and PNNL to Team Up on Transformative Grid Technology

— Avista —

Partnership continues a decade of successful collaboration.

Avista and the Department of Energy's Pacific Northwest National Laboratory (PNNL) announced they will enter an agreement to strengthen and expand their partnership at the frontiers of grid modernization.

The scope of the new agreement includes collaboration on new battery and thermal storage technologies, and the development and testing of transactive building controls for increased grid reliability and resiliency. Through the use of algorithms and analytics developed by PNNL, Avista will also be able to partner with its customers to coordinate service and help reduce load during peak demand.

The teaming agreement – formalized through a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) – was announced at the Innovation XLab Grid Modernization Summit in Seattle today.

Researchers from both PNNL and Avista will create a testbed for advanced distribution management systems, including the open-source software Avista is currently developing with Duke Energy. That software, which employs interoperability concepts and distributed intelligence, enables individual updates to "micro-services" rather than the entire system. This allows utilities to more efficiently integrate, coordinate and optimize diverse assets and add new grid management functionality (including the energy grid, traditional and renewable generation, and customer assets) – ultimately delivering more options in how customers can interact with their energy company.

Avista and PNNL plan to work with local government agencies to develop a protocol and methodology for establishing a "Home Energy Score" to inform owners and buyers of a home's potential energy performance. Avista engineers will develop the analytics model that can quantify and create a metric for residential energy efficiency; PNNL will provide the analytics and an independent review of the process necessary to create a metric that will be utilized to tailor energy efficiency solutions to customers.

"This continuing partnership is about leveraging regional expertise," explained Heather Rosenthaler, vice president of energy delivery at Avista. "Working together, Avista and PNNL will be able to accelerate the delivery of new services that provide both customer and societal benefits."

Avista and PNNL have a significant history and successful track record of collaboration and innovation in grid modernization, and we're looking forward to expanding our work with Avista to new challenges and opportunities at the grid's edge," said Carl Imhoff, head of the Electricity Infrastructure market sector at PNNL. "Specifically, we're collaborating on new projects that we believe will make our power grid more resilient, and that empower consumers with more information and choices in meeting their energy needs."

Cat Can't Keep Paws Out of Water Dish

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I have an older cat, "Haley," who has developed an annoying habit. After using the litter box, she puts her paws into her water dish (the dish is not near the litter box). Now she's started doing it even when she hasn't used the litter box. I have to change the water each time. I scold her when I catch her doing it, but she hasn't changed. How can I stop this behavior? — Betty M., via email

DEAR BETTY: Have you checked the bottoms of Haley's paws? If the pads or the spaces between the pads look irritated, Haley may be experiencing discomfort and finding relief in the water dish.

Even if you don't see anything wrong, try changing the brand of litter she uses for a couple of weeks. You should also let Haley's veterinarian know about this new pattern. He or she may want to look your cat over and could have some tips to help change the behavior.

If no physical cause is found, you'll need to stop the behavior. As you've noticed, scolding Haley does no good. You've got to be more creative.

First, move the water dish off of the floor to a side table with enough room for her to stand. Next, observe her behavior after each litter box trip. If she heads for the water dish, distract her with a toy for a few minutes. If you catch her in the water dish, gently lift her out, set her in another room and dangle a toy or treat in front of her. Basically, distract Haley with something she's more interested in than water. This may take a few weeks and many repetitions, but be patient.

Kay Powers Made Her Mark

— Carol Horning Stacey —

It has been almost three decades since Kay Powers taught English at Coeur d'Alene High School. If you were one of her students you will remember – Kay was the one who believed in poetry. She wrote poems, had her students read poetry, and got them writing poetry. She assembled student verse into a book every year. She treasured the nicely turned phrase.

At her memorial service last week, these books of student verse along with journals that printed Kay's work, filled four long tables. How all that poetry added up! But poetry wasn't the only reason the sizeable auditorium of the King County Labor Council in Seattle was packed. I had not realized it before, but Kay made her mark not only as a poet and teacher but also as a champion of the First Amendment.

I knew Kay had trouble with her school administration in a district near Seattle back around 2007, but I wasn't clear on how the conflict was resolved until I saw the newspaper article about Kay's passing in the Everett, Washington, Herald Net. The story was long and Kay was the heroine.

Among her extra tasks at her Seattle area school, Kay was faculty advisor to the Cascade student "Cascade" newspaper. A free speech battle that had begun in Everett High School boiled over to Cascade. Objecting to prior censorship, the student journalists voted to have their newspaper go underground, and Kay agreed to continue as advisor, "as long as standards are kept."

Those who remember Kay's many causes in Coeur d'Alene will know how she valued the rights of free speech and of the press and a host of other causes. She was an organizer of the Save Our Shores movement back in the '70's, which sought to preserve public access to CdA Lake. She lent her strength to the drive to save Tubbs Hill. When President Reagan's Secretary of the Interior came to town, Kay helped put together a protest march through City Park with Utah Phillips singing at the Rally. She was an active member of the teachers' union and the Democratic Party. Civic action was in her blood.

In Cascade the year long struggle between the school district authorities and the student reporters got ugly. Kay discovered that a hidden camera had been planted in her classroom. Ultimately, the superintendent closed down the paper, suspended the student editor and fired Kay. She had always supported her union, and now the unions went to bat for her.

It took a year, but a highly publicized court case was decided in Kay's favor. The superintendent retired a bit earlier than originally planned, and Kay went back to the classroom, cheered by her fellow teachers.

But that doesn't end the story. In March of 2018, after four tries, the Washington Legislature passed, and Governor Jay Inslee signed Senate Bill 5064 giving public school students in Washington the right to have the final call on what to publish (with a few exceptions for libel or otherwise illegal content.) The law also protects newspaper advisors, like Kay, and journalism teachers against re-assignment or firing when school officials are unhappy with student reporting.

"Presidential Pets"

Dating back to George Washington's stallions, hounds and a parrot, pets have resided in or on the grounds of the White House. Unusual residents through the years have included a pigmy hippo (Calvin Coolidge), a tobacco-chewing ram (Woodrow Wilson), and silkworms belonging to Mrs. John Quincy Adams. This puzzle contains the names of 37 presidential pets, not counting Barack Obama's Portuguese Water Dog, "Bo", whose name can be found 12 times in the grid. Reportedly, Donald Trump doesn't have any pets.

My Favorite Toy Was Dirt is an all new, exciting and innovative work that combines classic tales by best-selling humor writer Patrick F. McManus with original and authentic music by composer, arranger and musician Olivia Brownlee. The show features Pat's indentured actor, Tim Behrens, vs. seven musicians!

The musicians become an integral part of the performance and the humor, as they interrupt, interject, and also interfere with the proceedings. Confused? Think Mark Twain meets Spike Jones! Or a Marx Brothers movie scored by Aaron Copland. Or Peter and the Wolf on steroids where nobody dies in the end, not even the wolf.

In Dirt, hilarious McManus stories are surrounded by original, authentic, and wildly creative music, evoking folk, traditional jazz, Texas swing, American classical, cowboy, barn dances, and other popular forms.

The composer is Olivia Brownlee, a talented singer, musician, composer, arranger, and artist. www.oliviabrownlee.com

The story telling is universal, accessible, G-rated, imaginative, intelligent, and most of all, funny. As one presenter said of the Comedies: "I have never heard such sustained laughter in a theatre."

After receiving a grant from the Spokane Arts Commission, Behrens and Brownlee conducted a campaign through a Kickstarter page that successfully raised funds to finish the score, hire the musicians and venues, and begin performing. Many of those contributors will be present for one of the first four performances.

Previous McManus shows have garnered some pretty wonderful reviews.

The Billings Gazette reviewer said: "I laughed until my chest ached and my face hurt. And then I laughed harder."

The late actor Jack Lemmon said: "Tim relishes in knocking the audiences out with laughter; see this show!"

The Spokesman Review once worried that "paramedics would have to be called in people were laughing so hard."

"A terrific show, wonderfully well delivered to our sold out audiences: smart, energetic, nuanced." Director, the Reif Center, Grand Rapids, MN

"The play brought jolts of laughter to the Discovery Theatre's sold-out performances, as actor Tim Behrens cooked up a perfect delivery. The man seated next to me had such a hard time breathing from laughing so violently that his odd-sounding snorts and gasps were so loud!" The Anchorage Daily News

MUSEUM of NORTH IDAHO

Frederick Post, for whom the town of Post Falls was named, was born September 16, 1821, in Germany and naturalized in Kendall City, Illinois about 1850. In 1871, he moved to Idaho Territory and purchased 280 acres at Treaty Rock from the Indians. He later had to re-purchase this land from the United States Government. He built a gristmill and the area's first sawmill and dammed the Spokane River. (He later offered the sawmill to the Army for $1000). He bought Conner's squatter's rights at present day Rathdrum. In 1889, he purchased railroad-owned city lots stretching (west to east) from McGuire Road to Ross Point. He later moved to Spokane Falls. Museum of North Idaho photo Mil-11-6

The Museum of North Idaho is seeking information about your family's experiences coming to North Idaho from a foreign country for a feature exhibit which opens April 2nd. The exhibit will explore the arrival, impact and continuity of the culture of immigrants in North Idaho. This includes foreign born who may have settled somewhere else before coming to North Idaho. Please contact the Museum if you have a story about your family, would like to help or have items to loan for the exhibit. Call Robert Singletary at 208-755-1308 or email dd@museumni.org.

Brief Air Exposure Has No Impact on Trout Survival, Reproductive Success

— U of I —

A University of Idaho study provides evidence that the practice by anglers of holding a fish out of water before releasing it has no impact on the fish's survival or its ability to produce offspring.

In the study, published this month in the North American Journal of Fisheries Management, researchers from U of I and the Idaho Department of Fish and Game caught more than 2,200 Yellowstone cutthroat trout over two years in a tributary of the South Fork of the Snake River in Idaho, a world-renowned fishery.

The researchers tagged the fish in the spring with tracking devices, took genetic samples, simulated angling and left some fish in the river while holding others out of the water for 30 and 60 seconds. The fish were then tracked to monitor their survival rates. The researchers returned to the same area in autumn to trap their offspring and determine the parentage of each fish through genetic analysis.

"We found that air exposure had no effect on short- or long-term survival, and no effect on reproductive success," said Michael Quist, one of the study's authors and an associate professor of fisheries management in U of I's College of Natural Resources.

Curtis Roth, lead author of the study and a recent U of I master's graduate, said the time intervals were chosen because they were consistent with how long anglers keep fish out of the water. An earlier study by the U of I researchers published in January 2018 in the journal Fisheries Research found more than 99 percent of anglers keep fish out of water for less than 60 seconds. The average was less than 20 seconds. Roth said researchers also focused on trout, a member of the salmonid family, because of its sensitivity.

"We chose salmonids for this study because they have lower tolerance of hypoxia — of being without oxygen. In theory, they would be the most likely to show an effect," said Roth, who is now a fisheries biologist with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game in Salmon.

Salmonids include salmon, trout and steelhead, whose response to air exposure during catch-and-release fishing has been source of concern.

Registration Due For Native Tree Identification Class In Coeur d'Alene

— University of Idaho —

Because we have such a varied range of latitudes, altitudes, soils, and precipitation patterns, Idaho has a wider variety of native trees than most other Rocky Mountain states. The first step in caring for these trees, whether they be in a landscape or in a forest, is to correctly identify the species.

Distinguishing between Idaho's trees can be a daunting task for beginners. Through a combination of images and live samples, a 2-hour workshop titled Identifying Idaho's Trees will help participants quickly identify Idaho's most common native trees, including: lodgepole pine, ponderosa pine, western white pine, western larch, Douglas-fir, Engelmann spruce, grand fir, subalpine fir, western redcedar, western hemlock, pacific yew, black cottonwood, quaking aspen, and red alder. Participants will also learn about the ecology, silviculture, and history of these species.

Identifying Idaho's Trees will be held on Monday, February 4th, 2019 from 6pm to 8pm at the Kootenai County Administration Building (451 N Government Way, in Coeur d'Alene - enter by Vehicle Licensing). The program can accommodate a limited number of people. Those wishing to participate should pre-register at the University of Idaho Extension Office in Kootenai County by Tuesday, January 29th. A $10 registration fee covers handouts and refreshments. For registration questions, contact the University of Idaho Extension Office in Kootenai County at 208-446-1680. The program is co-sponsored by University of Idaho Extension and the Idaho Department of Lands. It is also being held as part of the University of Idaho Master Gardeners' Evening Horticulture Workshop Series. An additional session of the program will be held April 11th in St. Maries.

Away With Words: Young Adult Writing Workshop

— East Bonner County Library District —

Teens who write unite at the East Bonner County Library District Sandpoint Branch for "Away With Words," a free young adult writing workshop led by Beth Weber. Weekly sessions begin on Tuesday, February 5th at 5:15pm in the Sandpoint Library's Teen Lounge and continue on Tuesdays through May. Young writers are invited to drop in for individual sessions or attend all sessions in the series. Registration is encouraged, but not required. Attendees will learn and be inspired by their peers and Sandpoint Literary Collective member, Beth Weber. "This is not really introductory, but more a way to learn through a sharing of work to improve writing skills," said Kimber Glidden, The Library's Teen Services Coordinator.

Beth Weber discovered she was a teacher at the age of fourteen. She began by teaching swimming, life-guard courses, and coaching swim team for King County Park Departments in Washington. Beth received a BA in Education with an English Major and Chem. and Psych. minors from the University of Washington. She continued her career as a middle school and high school English teacher in Metaline, WA. Upon moving to Sandpoint over 30 years ago, she transitioned into life as violin instructor. She has conducted the Festival Youth Orchestra for 9 of those years and is the organizer and administrator of the Festival at Sandpoint Summer Youth Music Camp. She was recently selected from an international pool of applicants to attend the Key West Literary Seminar's Poetry Workshop led by US Poet Laureate, Billy Collins. Based on the merit of her poetry, she received a grant from the Idaho Commission on the Arts supporting her trip. For the past three years, Beth has studied poetry with 6-times published poet and creative writing instructor, Jim Mitsui. She credits Jim for nurturing and helping to sustain her creative writing energy. Beth's poetry can be seen in the Sandpoint Reader column "This Open Window". The bidding:
West 1 ♦ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♦ Pass 4 ♣
Dble
Opening lead — four of hearts.

This deal occurred during the 1984 World Team Olympiad in the match between Pakistan and Germany. It features a play that is seldom seen in actual practice, although the opportunity for it arises more frequently than is generally realized. Declarer with the South hand was Jan-e-Alam Fazli of Pakistan. His out-of-the-blue four-spade bid was intended primarily as a sacrifice against four hearts. But when West led a heart and the surprisingly strong dummy came down, Fazli realized he had a genuine chance to make the contract. He finessed the queen of hearts at trick one and cashed the ace, discarding a club. At this point, most declarers would probably lead a low trump from dummy, hoping to lose only one trump trick and two clubs and so make four spades. But this approach would not have met with success. West would win the king of spades with the ace and shift to the K-10 of clubs, won by East with the queen. A third round of clubs would then render South helpless. If he ruffed low, West would overruff with the nine; if he ruffed with the queen instead, West would discard and eventually score the setting trick with the nine of trumps.

Fazli wisely foresaw that this might occur if he led a spade at trick three, so instead he led the eight of hearts and discarded the seven of clubs on it! This immaculate play effectively severed the defenders' communications. After winning the heart, West led the K-10 of clubs, declarer ruffing East's queen. Fazli then finessed the queen of diamonds and returned a low spade. West took the king with the ace but could do no better than return a diamond. Fazli won with the ace, cashed dummy's ten of spades and ruffed a diamond. The queen of spades then drew West's nine, and the doubled contract came rolling home.

Circus Comes to Spokane

— Carol Horning Stacey —

On Friday evening, February 1st, at 7pm the Spokane Symphony will present Cirque Zuma Zuma as part of the Family Series. Cirque Zuma Zuma combines the mystique of Africa with the excitement of a theatrical circus. The show includes aerial acrobats, Egyptian limbo dances, South African gumboot dances, Gabonese tumbling and South African contortionist feats, all set to the orchestra's music.

The program takes place at the Martin Woldson Theater at the Fox, one block west of the historic Davenport. Both buildings have been restored and are a feast for the eyes.

Spokane Symphony Musicians venture out from their home base for two concerts titled "Handel's Journey." On Saturday, February 23rd, at 7pm, the music will be played at the Westminster Congregational United Church of Christ in Spokane. On Sunday, February 24th, the music starts at 3pm at the Spokane Valley Church of the Nazarene.

Eckhart Preu will conduct, taking music lovers on a journey in the Baroque tradition with Handel, Corelli and more from Germany to England via Italy. For information and tickets call 509-624-1200

Art Fest Poster Contest

— Carol Horning Stacey —

Art on the Green invites artists to try their hand at poster design for next summer's Art on the Green festival in Coeur d'Alene. Posters from past years can be seen on the festival's Internet site, artonthegreen.org. The way the Internet works to confuse you, it's all too easy to be diverted onto other sites using some variety of Art on the Green's name, so take care.

Winner of the contest wins an honorarium of $300 plus a T-shirt picturing the winning design, which is also used for festival literature, buttons, caps, etc. The deadline for entries is March 15th, 2019.

The rules are similar to those of previous years:

- 1) Art is to be the original work of the entrant; lettering may be original or come from any kind of art service
- 2) The art work should be in finished form and unframed.
- 3) Poster size is 11"x17"
- 4) The design and design rights become the property of Citizens' Council for the Arts and will be adapted for T-shirts, pins, programs and/or print and media
- 5) Entries will be selected at the sole discretion of the Citizens' Council for the Arts
- 6) Be sure to include your name, address, phone and email address on the back of your entry.
- 7) The printed poster will include the following information:
  - a. 51st Annual Art on the Green
  - b. August 2nd, 3rd, & 4th, 2019
  - c. On the grounds of North Idaho College
  - d. Citizens' Council for the Arts
  - e. www.artonthegreen.org
  - f. The new Art on the Green logo

Submit artwork to: Citizens' Council for the Arts, c/o Flammia and Solomon, 317 Wallace Avenue, Coeur d'Alene ID 83814.
