City of Coeur d'Alene LEAF-FEST Begins November 12th

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 12th, 2025 marks the start of the City of Coeur d'Alene's annual leaf pick-up program. Please be sure to KEEP leaves on your property until Saturday, November 1st. After Saturday the 1st, please rake your leaves and pine needles about one foot away from the gutter/curb line to allow for water drainage. City crews and equipment are limited, so we need your help. Leaves will be picked up only once. Please do not put leaves in the street after city crews have completed your area and do not include branches, grass clippings, garden debris, or garbage/trash. Bagged leaves/needles will not be picked up.

Pick-up will start south of Sherman Avenue and move north. We expect completion before December 5th. Follow our progress on maps.cdaid.org/leaf

LEAF-FEST DO'S & DON'TS

DO:

- KEEP leaves and needles on property until Saturday, November 1st.
- Please move cars off the street if at all possible during leaf pick-up.
- Keep the leaves about one foot away from the curb line to allow drainage.
- Be alert for leaf pick-up equipment traveling through your neighborhood.
- Keep a safe distance away from leaf pick-up heavy equipment.
- Recognize that we have a tough job to do in a very short window between when the leaves fall and when the snow flies.
- City and private trucks are exempted from covering loads during the leaf pick-up period. Sweepers will follow city trucks to collect remaining/excess leaves.

REMEMBER:
Needles and Leaves ONLY!
No branches,
grass clippings
or garden debris.
NO GARBAGE

DO NOT:

- Place bagged leaves in the street.
- Mix branches, debris or other trash in with the leaves.
- Miss the deadline...We only have time for one pass.

If you have questions or need additional information, please check the website streets.cdaid.org or call the Street Maintenance Information Line at 208-769-2235

WE HAVE TO ASK FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER KOOTENAI COUNTY FIRE & RESCUE IS ASKING YOU TO VOTE ON A LEVY THAT INCREASES FUNDING.

KEEP OUR FIRST RESPONDERS >> Levy passage would ensure the district can continue employing the firefighters and paramedics currently serving our community after the current federal grant funding ends soon.

WITHSTAND NEW GROWTH >> Levy funds would provide for the anticipated resources necessary to meet the ever-increasing emergency calls and ensure the district has plans in motion for future growth needs.

SAVE CRITICAL RESPONSE TIMES >> The Levy will help preserve the current short response times while making sure the district is equipped to handle all incoming emergencies safely and professionally.

FIRE DISTRICT FUNDING FACTS:

- > New construction impact fees can not pay for first responders.
- > The fire district's annual funding is capped by state law & does not mirror growth from new homes, buildings and their taxes.
- > The Urban Renewal Districts' taxes do not fund our fire district.
- > Other funding options have been explored and or used.

I WAS WRONG ABOUT Charlie Kirk! I believe he was sacrificed by satanic influenced people to make him a martyr to promote Project 2025, which is to get people to go to church on Sunday, instead of the Lord's Day, Saturday, the 7th day sabbath. Since Satan invented Sunday worship services (Daniel 7:25), Satan will use whatever means to gain people's worship, as the Bible clearly points out as his agenda (Isaiah 14:12-14). As scripture clearly points out the fact, he is the god of this world (2 Corinthians 4:4) and as the god of this world, he wants worship by whatever means it takes, to gain people's loyalty. Satan understands what Jesus Christ said, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge" and so he keeps people from Bible study, so he can destroy them and he is all too successful at doing just that. How To Preserve Fall Colors Throughout The Year

— Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks —

The best thing about fall is when the summer blooms are still lingering, competing with a kaleidoscope of turning leaves, and the golden sunshine bathes everything in a warm glow against a brilliant blue sky.

Ever wish you could capture some of that beauty and keep it a bit longer? Well, we can't freeze time, but we can press some fall leaves to enjoy the beauty a little longer.

All you need to press leaves is, well, some leaves. And maybe some parchment paper, waxed paper or newspaper to absorb the moisture, and a good heavy book or two to press the leaves flat.

Be sure to collect the leaves when they are at their brightest, fresh from the tree or ground, and still a little plump with moisture. If they are crisp or starting to become brown, you have waited too long. Find a variety of shapes and colors, if you can, to capture that fall contrast. But even a single type of tree can produce rich shades of yellow, orange and brown.

To press the leaves, I lay them flat with space between them on a large sheet of parchment paper. You can use single leaves or a stem with several leaves attached, but make sure it lays flat and the leaves don't overlap. If the stems are too long or thick at the edge, I trim them. When you're done laying them out, cover the leaves with another sheet of parchment paper. If you're doing just a few leaves, slipping the sheets between the pages of a hardcover book works well. I wanted to do a bunch of leaves, so

I put my sheets on a cookie sheet and covered them with large hardcover books. Adding some rocks or weights on top helps to press the leaves.

The thicker the leaf, the longer it will take to dry and preserve. Gently remove any dirt or debris first. Ideally, leaves should be given a week or two to dry and flatten. You can check them for mold, but be careful not to tear or crease them.

There are dozens of ways to display leaves once they are dry. You can seal them in a glass picture frame or laminate them to make bookmarks or placemats. Two sheets of waxed paper can create a similar laminating effect. Place leaves between two sheets of waxed paper and cover with flour sack towels or parchment paper. Heat your iron to a warm setting with no steam and press to melt the wax and seal the papers together. You may have to experiment with iron settings a bit first.

I like to seal leaves onto Mason jars or glass vases. You just need a little Mod Podge craft sealant or other decoupage adhesive and a foam brush. Start with one leaf and hold it flat against the outside of the jar. Apply a fairly thick layer of Mod Podge over the leaf and its edges. You may have to dab a bit on the back of the leaf to help it stay fixed. Apply another leaf and cover with sealant. I like to overlap the edges of the leaves, but I leave some space between for candlelight to show through. You can use a lot of leaves or just a few. I threw in a pretty wildflower I found. These take longer to press because of the thickness and moisture, but if you don't mind a little lumpiness they are very pretty.

You have to use a good amount of sealant to cover the leaves and make them stick. Don't worry about the direction of your strokes or how messy it looks; it will look white and uneven when wet but will dry clear and you won't notice the flaws.

Allow time for the first coat to dry, either overnight or a few hours. Apply at least a second coat to make sure all the edges are sealed to prevent any decay or peeling of the leaves.

If you have raffia, jute, twine or leather cord, it looks nice to tie a piece around the neck of the jar. Add a battery-powered votive candle or a real tealight candle and sit back and enjoy the beautiful glow through the leaves.

These jars will last for years if properly sealed. It is an inexpensive craft that doesn't take long, and it's also very kid friendly.

Happy Fall!

U of I Launches Forest Innovations Institute to Lead Next-Generation Forestry Research

— University of Idaho —

MOSCOW, Idaho — A new interdisciplinary research institute at University of Idaho dedicated to advancing forestry science, management and innovation aims to partner with landowners, industry and government agencies to develop solutions for 21st-century forestry challenges.

The mission of U of I's newly established Forest Innovations Institute (FII) is to help public and private forest landowners and industry partners apply the latest research and technology, said Dennis Becker, dean of the College of Natural Resources. This includes topics such as tree physiology and genetics, fire modeling, silviculture, forest pests and pathogens, harvest operations and the economics and policy of forest management.

"FII will engage broadly with public and private forest landowners, industry partners, tribal governments, nonprofits and other universities on a regional and even international level," Becker said. "FII aims to ensure that forestry research is not only cutting edge but also grounded in real-world needs and opportunities."

An important goal for the institute is to support workforce development and training in partnership with U of I faculty and students. FII will help prepare the next generation of forestry professionals equipped with skills in the latest technologies, as well as strong scientific and economic foundations.

These efforts align with University of Idaho's strategic priorities to conduct research that generates practical solutions for Idaho's residents and workforce.

PotlatchDeltic, which manages more than 620,000 acres of private timberlands in Idaho, has a history of collaboration with U of I's forestry program.

Darrin Ball, the company's vice president of Timberlands, believes FII will play a critical role for stakeholders in Idaho and enhance the work already being done toward sustainable forest innovation.

"Through our decades-long collaboration with University of Idaho's College of Natural Resources, our sustainable forest management initiatives have benefited from high-quality research on a wide range of issues including research on forest nurseries, tree improvement, watersheds and forestry operations," Ball said. "With more than half of our professional staff in Idaho being graduates of the College of Natural Resources, we view FII's goal to generate an even higher-quality trained workforce as a major win for Idaho."

Dustin Miller, director of the Idaho Department of Lands, which manages a million acres of Idaho's endowment timberlands, said U of I's frontline forest research has guided Idaho's sustainable forest practices for more than a century.

"I'm excited about the launch of the new Forest Innovations Institute — and it couldn't come at a better time," Miller said. "As demand for wood and wood products continues to grow, advancements in forestry research and technology are essential to maintaining a sustainable supply of wood and fiber for mills in Idaho and across the country."

Partnering with the Forest Innovations Institute ensures foresters have access to the latest research and technology.

"That helps ensure Idaho's state forest lands are managed sustainably to produce the timber resources society depends on while generating income for our endowment beneficiaries," Miller said.

To fulfill its mission, FII will draw expertise from several existing U of I research units, including the Center for Forest Nursery and Seedling Research, the Forest Products Lab, the IFIRE Combustion Lab, the Inland Empire Tree Improvement Cooperative, the Intermountain Forestry Cooperative, the Mica Creek Experimental Watershed, the Policy Analysis Group, U of I Drone Lab, U of I's Experimental Forest and the Forest Affiliate Network. These units bring expertise and infrastructure that will enhance FII's ability to conduct high-impact, transdisciplinary research.

"With increasing pressures from wildfires, pests, climate change and economic shifts, our forests face unprecedented challenges," Becker said. "The Forest Innovations Institute represents a bold response. By integrating new technologies, industry collaboration and state-of-the-art research, we aim to support healthy, productive forests."

FII is now accepting project proposals, industry collaboration inquiries and applications for student involvement. For more information, visit University of Idaho's website or contact the institute's leadership.

— Better Together Animal Alliance—

Say hello to Bracken, an 8-month-old sweetheart! This beautiful girl is still learning that the world is a safe place, and she's making quiet but steady progress every day. Bracken enjoys the company of her canine friends and finds comfort in their playful energy. She's not the kind of pup to demand the spotlight - but if you give her a chance, she just might steal your heart. Come meet Bracken and see if you're the safe haven she's been waiting for.

Meet Birch! Birch is a 2 year old fellow who is very shy, but trying hard to speak up! Birch is a new resident so we are still getting to know him. We know he likes being indoors and outdoors and gets along well with dogs and other cats. He seems to do well with adults and children and really likes to be pet. VERY ENERGETIC, Curious and playful 4.5 month old male Peke-A-Pom pup; merle with blue/ brown eyes. Sire is half Peke, half Pom, dam is throwback Pom. This little fella has had 2 sets of shots and dewormer and is potty training (still using piddle pads too). He will weigh about 7-10 lbs. when grown. He has been raised in our home with his parents and an elderly lab, but has not had contact with cats or kids under 12. He is crate trained for bedtime and when we are out, but has his mom with him. We are not a breeder; this is an accidental litter and he is the last pup left. He needs a home with someone who has the time, patience, and resources to care for a smart little guy like him. He will make an excellent companion dog as he is very sweet and bright, so we will be extremely discerning regarding owners, and our rehoming fee of $400 reflects that. Please text Jae at 208-929-8687 with any questions. Thank you!

Pets of the Week: Hank and Stanley

— Second Chance Pet Rescue —

Hello everybody, my name is Hank! I am a 1-2 year old neutered male lab mix, mostly lab! I do great with other dogs and play with all my friends here in Rescue all day long.

I would be fine as an only dog too if you had lots of time to spend with me. I love to go hiking, exploring, camping and am housebroke and crate trained. I walk beautifully on a leash and I'm the bestest boy! I would make a great addition to any family.

Hello everybody, my name is Stanley! I am a 2-year-old purebred neutered male, French Bulldog. My breed is also known as a "Frenchie". I'm a blue cream merle, I know, I know... fancy! I come with some sensitivities to food and so will require a home who can feed me the highest quality grain and chicken-free food. I get along with other dogs that are rough and tumble pretty well, but I do better with females than males. I'm probably a little too rambunctious for a home with small children as I like to play rough and I make a lot of noise while doing so! I was dropped off at a rural shelter in Elko, Nevada after my (2nd) owners couldn't deal with my recurring ear infections. I've been seen by a wonderful vet up here and she says I just need better quality food, and the occasional ear cleaning. We Frenchies are known to be itchy! My foster mom is seeking a Frenchy knowledgeable home with or without a female Frenchie for me to play with. I could also appreciate a Pug sibling!

Please email Idahocoondog@yahoo.com or log on to www.scpr.petfinder.com for more info and an adoption application.

Pets of the Week: Ajax and Bright Eyes

— Companions Animal Center —

Ajax may be a little older, but don't let that fool you. This happy guy still has plenty of pep in his step! He loves life, enjoys being around people, and has a tail wag ready for everyone he meets. Ajax is carrying around a few extra pounds and would love a family who can help him slim down with healthy walks and playtime (he'll make it fun for you too!).

Bright Eyes is a shy but affectionate cat who's slowly beginning to trust. While he can be skittish at first, it's clear he's craving connection — he'll linger nearby, peek around corners, and quietly observe people with wide, curious eyes. He wants affection but just isn't quite sure how to ask for it yet. With gentle voices and slow movements, he starts to relax and may even come close for a soft sniff or slow blink. He's making progress every day and is beginning to show his sweet personality to those who go at his pace. This boy does amazing with feline companions. He gains confidence from the presence of other cats and would do best in a home with at least one friendly, cat-social buddy. A confident cat could be key to helping him blossom even more.

Pets of the Week: Piccolo and Spruce — Priest River Animal Rescue —

Piccolo's zest for life shines from the moment she wakes, her tiny paws eagerly searching for toys. She attacks every game—chasing feather wands, pouncing on crinkly balls, and darting through tunnels—with infectious energy. Her playful antics, especially hunting her own tail or leaping after a laser dot, spark laughter all around. When not playing, Piccolo loves watching birds and squirrels from the window, chirping with delight. Her curiosity and joy are contagious. Piccolo turns simple moments into pure happiness, making each day brighter for everyone lucky enough to be near her.

Thanks to Cheri's sponsorship, my adoption fee is waived for an approved home! Meet Spruce—a sweet, loving 2-year-old girl who enjoys walks and family time. She'd do best with older kids and gets along with other dogs (unknown with cats). Spruce is cautious and easily scared, so she needs a patient family to help her build confidence. Spruce and Tamarack were found abandoned in Stevens County, but kind citizens cared for us until we were rescued. Now, staff are learning our personalities, and we're starting to feel hopeful for a brighter future.

Phone: 208-448-0699 | Email: pranimalhouse@hotmail.com

Our hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 11:00am to 4:00pm. Walk-ins are welcome to see the adoptable animals. We have a wonderful Critters Thrift Store full of hidden treasures.

Two International Choirs in Concert Together

— Music Conservatory of Sandpoint —

SANDPOINT, Idaho — Two celebrated international choirs, Spiritsong and Boundless, will join forces to present Inside Out: Reflections on Life in an Earthsuit, an original choral theater work exploring the wonder of the human body and the spirit within.

The first performance takes place on Friday, October 24th, at 7pm at Little Carnegie, 110 Main Street, inside the Music Conservatory of Sandpoint with additional performances on Saturday, October 25th, at 7pm at Trinity Lutheran Church in Bonners Ferry, ID, and Sunday, October 26th, at 3pm at the Kootenay River Secondary School Auditorium in Creston, BC.

Admission is by donation at the door. Proceeds benefit two vital community causes: the Second Harvest Food Truck, which delivers food to hundreds of North Idaho families each month, and the Creston Refugee Committee, the longest-standing refugee support organization in Canada.

Inside Out blends spoken word and song to celebrate the “earthsuit”—our human body—and its connection of body, heart, mind, and soul. The performance features an engaging mix of musical styles, from profound choral works to lighthearted, upbeat pieces.

Spiritsong is a 30-voice open women’s choir.
Boundless, a 16-voice auditioned chamber ensemble, features balanced men’s and women’s voices and performs in both full and smaller ensemble settings.

The work was created and is conducted by Vicki Blake Thompson, with Barb Nelson as collaborative pianist. Together, Thompson and Nelson have led choirs that have received standing ovations at Idaho state and six-state regional music educator gatherings. Their ensembles have performed internationally in Cuba, Iceland, Greece, China, Tanzania, Costa Rica, Ireland, Austria, and twice at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

Next summer, Spiritsong and Boundless will tour London and Scotland. Interested singers are invited to contact Vicki Blake Thompson at vickiblake1@mac.com for audition and interview information.

White-Tailed Deer Tooth Collections and Antler Measurements to Begin for Units 2, 10A and Select Controlled Hunts

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

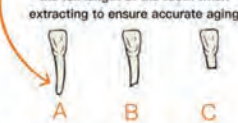

Fish and Game encourages hunters to participate in the study to help manage deer in northern Idaho

Panhandle and Clearwater hunters planning to pursue white-tailed deer in units 2, 10A and select controlled hunts are encouraged to participate in the third year of Idaho Fish and Game's age study.

Before you Start

The root tip is the most important portion of the tooth - Please preserve the full length of the tooth when extracting to ensure accurate aging

A - Full length, ideal for processing
B - Slightly broken, can still be processed
C - Very broken, cannot be processed

How to Extract

Ideally, extract teeth from fresh jaws, at home or in the field

#1 Cut through the gum tissue on either side of the tooth with a sharp knife

#2 Gently pry the teeth forward using the back of the knife

#3 Place teeth inside a labeled paper envelope and allow to dry

Alternate Method: Grasp tooth with pliers at base of the crown where it meets the gumline. Pull firmly with a gentle twisting motion. Be careful not to grasp too hard or twist too much and risk breaking the tooth.

Preferred Tooth Type

Important

- Do not boil or bleach your teeth
- Allow teeth to dry completely; do not include any soft tissue
- Do not package teeth in plastic, this prevents drying & leads to odor/rot
- Do not send entire jawbones

Participation is voluntary, and hunter-provided samples help wildlife managers better understand the age structure of white-tailed deer in northern Idaho. More samples equal more data, which produces better results.

Participation is easy. Hunters wishing to participate can simply provide a tooth from the front lower jaw of their harvested white-tailed deer. Tooth collection envelopes are available at any Fish and Game regional office.

In addition, hunters who harvest a buck can provide information about the number of points on each antler beam as well as main beam measurements. This information will help Fish and Game staff better understand whether antler measurement could be a useful predictor of deer age.

In 2023-24, over 1,000 white-tailed deer teeth were submitted as part of the study. Results from the 2023 effort can be found here. Results from the 2024 effort will be available in early 2026.

How to measure the Main beam of a white-tailed deer

What you need: • Measuring tape • Non-stretch cord or string • Tape

How to measure:

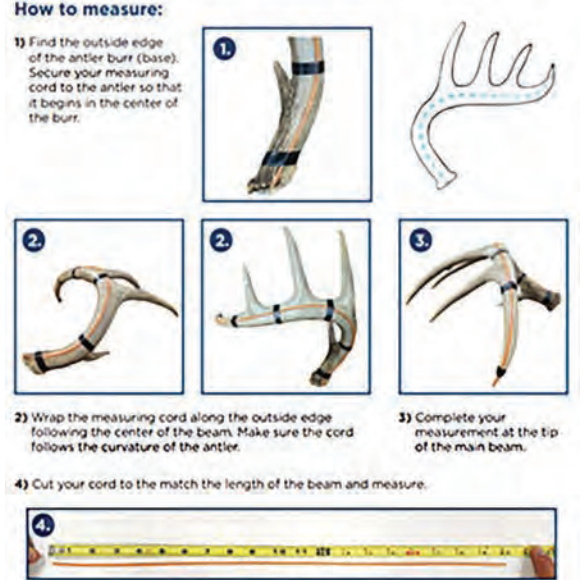

1) Find the outside edge of the antler burr (base). Secure your measuring cord to the antler so that it begins in the center of the burr.

2) Wrap the measuring cord along the outside edge following the center of the beam. Make sure the cord follows the curvature of the antler.

3) Complete your measurement at the tip of the main beam.

4) Cut your cord to the match the length of the beam and measure.

Repeat this process for both antlers and record your measurements on the tooth envelope.

For more information, contact the Fish and Game Panhandle (208) 769-1414 or Clearwater (208) 799-5010 regional offices.

FWP's Private Land Access Programs Help Both Hunter, Landowners

— Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks —

HELENA -- In Montana, a good day in the field requires access. Often that access is to private lands.

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks as several access programs that help both hunters and landowners navigate hunting season. Understanding these programs and how to utilize them can turn a frustrating hunting season into a successful one for hunters.

Block Management is Montana's cornerstone private land access program. This program partners with nearly 1,400 landowners around Montana to provide access to nearly 7 million acres of private land.

Accessing this program is relatively simple. Hunters can simply go online to <https://fwp.mt.gov/hunt/access/blockmanagement> and find the Block Management Area (BMA) they wish to hunt, get the map and rules and then simply follow the rules for gaining access.

For many hunters, figuring out where to hunt is all part of the planning process and that can include finding some BMAs to explore, or it can mean looking into other FWP access opportunities.

For hunters looking to plan their hunts, the FWP Hunt Planner is an exceptional tool. This interactive mapping tool allows hunters to explore all of FWP's access opportunities, including Upland Game Bird Enhancement Program property, conservation easements, habitat leases, public land access agreements and much more.

A key point to remember is that all these programs and the private lands enrolled in them have specific access rules. It's the hunter's responsibility to know the rules of the land they are accessing. Breaking these rules is the same as breaking the law.

Getting the maps and rules for private lands enrolled in FWP access programs can be done either in person at a regional office, or conveniently through the FWP Hunt Planner.

Remember, plan ahead for access, be respectful and ethical in the field, and don't forget to say thank you to landowners who allow access. It's up to us. Respect access. Protect the hunt.

F&G and Private Lands: Part 1

Private lands are an important part of Idaho's big game habitat

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

From farms and ranches to large tracts of timberland, wildlife often use private land

A hunter drives by a rancher's field and sees a herd of elk, including several bulls, after only seeing a few elk in his favorite hunting spot the previous season. While he always enjoys seeing elk, he's frustrated that they are casually feeding behind a no trespassing sign.

"Some guys have all the luck," he thinks to himself.

It's often not that simple. The elk he's seeing may be causing the landowner damage by consuming or damaging crops, and possibly damaging fences. The landowner also enjoys seeing elk, but maybe not that many. In the past, a few animals showed up for a brief period, but this herd stuck around, and problems increased as the herd grew.

This scenario occurs throughout Idaho, particularly in drier climates of South and Central Idaho where elk are attracted to irrigated crop lands. Private lands are often attractive and beneficial to wildlife, but can cause frustration for hunters and landowners alike.

"Private lands are important to the state's abundant big game herds," said Toby Boudreau, Idaho Fish and Game's Deer and Elk Coordinator. "And private lands benefit the average hunter by sustaining big game herds during critical times of year. While there's sometimes grumbling that hunters don't have access to some of those animals, the benefits are clear that private lands are important for big game herds."

Fish and Game works to reduce conflicts between big game herds and private lands. There's a variety of challenges, as well as management tools, to deal with conflicts between big game animals – particularly elk – and agriculture operations. But there's not always a permanent fix because wild animals don't understand property boundaries, and they are attracted to land that provides food and security.

Public lands can't do it all

Nearly two-thirds of Idaho is public land that provides excellent wildlife habitat, and many big game animals spend most of their time there. But much of Idaho's valley bottoms, particularly along river corridors, are privately owned because that land provides agriculture resources like rich soil and water.

It's also important wildlife habitat, especially during winter months when animals migrate from higher elevations to escape deep snow. Many Idaho landowners appreciate wildlife on their property, even if they cause some inconveniences, or eat some crops, but when big game animals start affecting their bottom line, something has to give.

Fish and Game can't ignore the problem

As the public trust holders of Idaho's wildlife, Fish and Game is required by law to help landowners try to prevent damage from big game. That's one reason Fish and Game has a variety of staff in each region of the state who are focused wholly, or partly, on landowner relations and preventing agriculture damage, commonly known as "depredation."

These people understand the needs of wildlife, and also know the problems they can cause to private landowners. Fish and Game personnel have a variety of tools to prevent or reduce wildlife conflicts before they occur, address them when they do, and try to stop them from recurring.

If none of that works, Idaho law requires Fish and Game to pay for damages caused by big game if a valid claim is filed by the landowner. The annual Access/Depredation Fee that hunters, anglers and trappers pay when they buy their licenses funds depredation payments.

Situations vary, but there's not always a permanent fix for depredation problems because what one herd finds attractive, another may follow. Each year can also be a little different. Things like droughts, severe winters, wildfires, and other events can draw big game animals onto private land, or bring them back after an absence.

Private lands also change hands, and the new owners may have a different attitude toward wildlife than the prior one, so maintaining relationships between landowners and Fish and Game is a recurring process.

Property owners control their land

Not all landowners hold the presence of wildlife on their property in the same regard. One landowner may encourage wildlife on their property, sometimes inadvertently creating a refuge, while an adjacent landowner is trying to grow crops that those animals eat. Fish and Game manages wildlife, but cannot dictate how landowners manage their property, which limits how the agency can deal with wildlife that causes problems.

Hunting is Fish and Game's primary method of dealing with wildlife conflicts on private lands. However, the landowner decides how much – if any – hunting will be allowed within their comfort level and operational needs. Sometimes, having hunters on their property, particularly during fall hunting seasons, is incompatible due to the timing of agriculture operations, such as harvest, or preparing for replanting. Hunting may also be unsafe due to the proximity of homes and communities.

What Fish and Game does to resolve wildlife conflicts

There are a variety of methods to prevent and mitigate damage from wildlife. Many of the preventative methods may not be apparent or obvious, such as improving or restoring nearby public lands so big game remain in their natural habitat. Fish and Game can also employ "continued use agreements," which pay landowners to allow wildlife on their property and keep them out of nearby properties during certain times of year when depredation is likely.

Fish and Game and the Fish and Game Commission can adjust hunting seasons so hunters have a chance to harvest animals and reduce herds that are causing damage, or the department can hold strategic "depredation hunts" to directly address offending animals while they are in the act.

When big game damage rises to a level that the landowner finds unacceptable, the landowner can file a claim, and Fish and Game has funds to pay for damages as outlined in state law. Fish and Game staff work with the landowner to develop and follow a plan to assist with damage prevention, and the landowner can file a claim for financial reimbursement if they have made a reasonable effort to prevent the damage.

But Fish and Game's depredation funding is limited, so if the total amount of claims exceeds the available funding, each claimant only receives a portion of their damage claim.

That's one reason why Fish and Game tries to balance abundant big game herds that hunters desire with consideration that those animals may cause agriculture operations. Learn in Part 2 how Fish and Game protects private lands from damage from big game so it can maximize herds statewide.

Large Tracts Program: Know Before You Go

— Idaho Dept. Fish & Game —

Hunters and recreationists must do their research before heading afield to access a Large Tracts land parcel.

Parcels in enrolled in Idaho's Large Tracts Program can change ownership at any time. Hunters, anglers and recreationists should never assume last season's access is still valid this season. Always confirm land status before your trip by checking the Idaho Hunt Planner.

Idahoans are fortunate—two-thirds of their land is public—but many valuable and publicly accessible hunting and recreation areas in the Panhandle and Clearwater regions are private, working timberlands enrolled in the Large Tracts Program.

Since 2019, this partnership has opened over 900,000 acres to the public. Because these parcels are private, working timberlands, sales, transfers and restrictions can—and do—occur.

Ownership changes. Access changes. Don't assume—check before you go.

What Fish and Game is doing

- Routinely communicating with the public about rules associated with Large Tract parcels.

- Partnering with timberland owners to update maps with closures, restrictions and land transfers before, during and after hunting seasons.
- Working with hunting app developers to incorporate consistent and accurate maps.
- Working with the public and partners to identify errors and quickly make corrections.
- Conservation officers are enforcing motorized restrictions and educating hunters about restrictions and closures.

What you can do

- Always check the Idaho Hunt Planner before your trip to confirm parcel status.
- Respect private property signs and gates—even if maps show otherwise.
- Report discrepancies: If you believe property is incorrectly signed, contact Fish and Game. Staff will research and provide guidance.

Panhandle Regional office: 208-769-1414

Clearwater Regional office: 208-799-5010

Remember—access to Large Tracts parcels is a privilege made possible through partnership. Your diligence helps keep these opportunities available for everyone.

National Mule Day October 26th

— National Day Calendar—

National Mule Day, on October 26th, recogniz- es an intelligent pack animal many mistaken to be stubborn.

A mule is a hybrid cross between a male donkey (jack) and a female horse. As a hybrid, the animal in- herits characteristics from both parents. The mule possesses the strength, intelligence, patience, per- severance, endurance, sure-footedness, and even temper of the donkey. From the horse, the mule inherits beauty, athletic ability, courage, vigor, and speed. In addition, mules appear to require less food than a horse of similar size.

According to the American Mule Museum:

- Early explorers brought donkeys to America, but they were quite small.
- George Washington played a significant role in the development of the mule population in America. He recognized the value of the sturdy animal in agriculture and became the first Amer- ican breeder.
- Washington wished to breed the very best mules, but he faced a significant obstacle – the Spanish government at that time prohibited the acqui- sition or exportation of the famous Andalusian donkey. So Washington wrote to King Charles of Spain requesting permission to purchase good quality breeding stock. In October of 1785, a ship docked in Boston harbor carrying a gift from King Charles for George Washington – two fine jennies and a 4-year old Spanish jack named, ap- propriately, “Royal Gift”. That royal gift from the Spanish king is credited with the development of the American mule. Today it’s considered the beginning of a dynasty that “reshaped the very landscape of the country.”

Mule FAQ

- Q. How many chromosomes does a mule have?
- A. A mule has 63 chromosomes. Its mother (horse) has 64, and the father (donkey) has 62. Due to the odd number of chromosomes, the hybrid cannot breed.
- Q. What is a female donkey called?
- A. Female donkey is called a jenny.
- Q. What are the hybrid of a male horse and a female donkey called?
- A. The hybrid of a male horse and female donkey is called a hinny, but it’s still a mule.
- Q. Are mules the only hybrid animal that exists?
- A. No. There are several hybrids around the world. Hybridization happens in birds, fish, mammals, and even reptiles. Some hybrids include:

- Grolar bear - offspring of a grizzly bear and a po- lar bear
- Cama - offspring of camel and lama
- Dzo - offspring of domestic cattle and yak
- Geep - offspring of a goat and a sheep
- Zorse - offspring of a zebra and a horse

- Q. Does hybridization occur without artificial intervention?
- A. Yes and no. Many factors play a role in hybrid- ization, whether it occurs in the wild or captivity. Some hybrids only exist due to artificial methods, though, and have never occurred outside of captiv- ity. For example, the grolar mentioned above hap- pens more often in the wild, but the changing envi- ronments of the grizzly bear and polar bear made it possible. Sometimes, circumstances leave two species with few options for mating - captivity, for example. One instance includes a male jaguar and female lion mating while in captivity. The resulting offspring were two cubs called a jaglion.

Bel Canto Opera Presents Kaputt! — An Operatic Comedy

— Music Conservatory of Sandpoint —

Bel Canto is taking opera somewhere you've never seen it go—infused with imagination, humor and gusto. Under the care of Karin Wedemeyer, the visionary behind Bel Canto and its artistic endeavors, a fresh approach to opera is emerging—one that challenges the perception that opera is stuffy or reserved for the few. Wedemeyer, a German-born professional opera singer and founder of the Music Conservatory, created Bel Canto to breathe fresh air into an art form she is determined to keep alive.

Following successful productions such as Tortellini, Olivia's Lament, and Moonlight, Bel Canto proudly presents the debut of Karin Wedemeyer's newest original work, Kaputt!

The premiere will take place at Little Carnegie, 110 Main Street, Sandpoint, with back-to-back performances on Saturday, November 1st, and Sunday, November 2nd, starting at 5pm. Audiences will be invited on an immersive artistic journey, complete with a few delightful surprises.

Kaputt! explores the complex and often ambiguous relationship between humans and technology, touching on the tension, absurdity, and vulnerability that arise when the digital world collides with our personal lives. The show's hallmark is its playful humor and audience engagement beyond the stage.

As part of the behind-the-scenes production and planning, the public was invited to bring old or outdated electronics—such as computers, phones, cables, and monitors—to be used as stage décor and then recycled following the performance. "I love the idea of combining art with something useful, like recycling and in a way help 'recycle' opera as an art form, by welcoming and engaging new audiences" says Wedemeyer.

"Let us help you change your mind!" has become something of a rallying cry for Bel Canto, whose audiences are treated to operatic experiences that are as thought-provoking as they are entertaining.

Now in its tenth year, Bel Canto celebrates a decade of bold, imaginative performances that push singers to new heights. Featuring a dynamic ensemble of professionals, students and emerging artists, this production promises the originality, wit, and compelling musical storytelling that have become the hallmark of Bel Canto. Secure your seat now for an unforgettable night on stage!

Tickets are available online at sandpointconservatory.org/events or at the door. Seating is limited and advance purchase is strongly encouraged.

Three Men Charged In Poaching Case Near Hardin

— Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks —

HARDIN – Three Big Horn County men were recently charged in Montana's 22nd Judicial District Court by a designated special prosecutor for unlawfully killing several bull elk and one mule deer buck in the Sarpy Creek area near Hardin between 2022 and 2023.

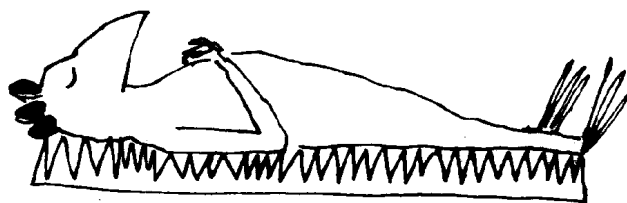

The investigation began with reports to FWP wardens about a headless elk carcass in an area where no one had permission to hunt. After an extensive investigation, wardens found that the group allegedly unlawfully killed and possessed several large bull elk in Hunting District 702 during a closed season and without landowner permission. The group also allegedly killed one mule deer buck without hunting licenses and without landowner permission.

During the investigation, Montana wardens executed multiple search warrants and seized several mounts of the allegedly unlawfully killed elk and deer. Wardens also seized multiple elk mounts, which were voluntarily turned over to FWP.

The individuals involved in this case have been charged with 33 total charges by the special prosecutor, including 10 felony charges and 23 misdemeanor charges. Every person accused of a crime is presumed to be innocent until his or her guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt.

The investigation was in partnership with Montana Fish Wildlife & Parks, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Anyone with information about crimes against wildlife or state lands is encouraged to visit tipmont.mt.gov or contact their local warden to provide details. Those who report information may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.
