THIS MESSAGE IS FOR all Americans, bible readers, the final write. The Gospels are of the knowledge of good and evil tree. The writing style strongly suggests the Lord Satan himself wrote them using a good and evil method. "God"-like sayings mingled with deception and "evil" sayings. The highlighted red lettering suggest they are the words of the red dragon, Satan himself. Per the Lord's instruction to Adam and Eve, I caution the reader not to believe or follow this tree. It is for good reason, "you shall surely die". Prior to his baptism Jesus was alive. The writings say the "spirit descended on him like a dove". It is twisted deception. It can be determined by what happens next, that death descended on him. Thereafter He is with Satan in the spirit world. Now, the Lord Satan comes as an identity thief. From there on it is the Lord Satan who is Jesus and Shepherd. Thus, the saying "God is with us". Using his name and likeness to put out his new, but really the same testament, worded perfectly to deceive those fool sheep who he leads to their death. It is with Satan Jesus is told if you be a Son of God jump his angels will save thee. That's not how his story ended, he was killed. It is deception to believe that 2000 years ago Jesus had to die for the sins of many. It's nonsense! He died because he believed and followed the Lord and his knowledge of scripture wasn't good. You shall surely die. Now hear the Lord's Prayer. "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want" meaning you don't want him for a shepherd! He maketh me lie down in green pastures. Meaning, he kills you! Both Moses and Jesus were hailed as great leaders. The truth is that God never took either. The Lord took both. Using one more saying, "I will smite the shepherd and scatter the sheep". It is unlikely Jesus would have said I kill myself and scatter my followers. The truth is that the gospels are not credible as they are a deceiving word. After he was crucified, Mary is at an empty tomb. Jesus speaks to her from outside. She doesn't recognize him. Figure it out! Soon Christmas, the proclaimed day to worship his unknown birth date. Now, the Lord is clever! Unscram-

ble the letters "Santa" and you get Satan. Next, change the meaning of "Claus" and you get Claws, "Satan Claws". It is lovely anytime family and friends come together to dine and exchange gifts. As Satan does, he creates a good thing then entangles it with sin and lies. I suggest strongly to move away from the Christmas and Satan Claws thing, but do come together in truth and enjoy. Satan won't like it and that will make it most enjoyable. The Holy Bible provides two messages that one can follow. I have found the Lord's word and "do not go there"! I have found nothing wrong with the tree of life word other than it could use more instruction. It is the Lord's bible and perhaps he withheld some of the words. The Holy Bible doesn't say what most believe it does. I do lean towards the book being Evil. I base that on a biblical principal, never believe a deceiver even when they tell the truth. As I have proved the Bible I have found it that way. It is overrun with deceiving writings. I do believe there is a Good God up there. I'm tossed whether or not he has anything to do with the bible. Outside the bible and within the worlds I have seen some goodness. One stand out thing is an exhausted mother who at the new born baby's slightest whimper God awakens her to care for that baby. I've seen that within animals as well. It suggests to me a good God who cares for all living things. The worlds are of technology, one cannot live without God. The worlds need a Good God with like minded people. Not, a deceiver, who murders, steals, enslaves and lies. A gamer who uses people for his own pleasure. To know and follow the truth is a good way. There will be some that say I am the Anti-Christ. That's not true, I am the Anti-Satan. I have provided these two writings at great expense. I ask nothing in return. Give them due consideration. The world and the country need a Good God. The given history of the world says that for the last 2000 years, the world has been deceived. Time to end that! If one cannot fully understand it's likely best not to worship it. The End. SDJ. Box PP, c/o the Exchange, PO Box 11813, Spokane WA 9911. (Paid Advertisement)

Decade-Long High Lymphocyte Count Isn't a Cause for Concern

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a female and almost 75 years old. My vital signs are always normal, and I am active, but slightly overweight. I get quarterly blood draws, and every reading is in the normal range except for the lymphocytes. That count is higher, just outside the normal range (the lab's range is 850 to 3,900 cells/uL, and my absolute lymphocytes are 4,377 cells/uL).

This has occurred in the blood draws from the last two or three years, with the exception of one that was back in the normal range. About 12 years ago, after several abnormal results, I saw a hematologist, who reported nothing wrong after doing more extensive blood work. No reason could be given for it. I am concerned, but not obsessing over it. Is there any reason you can give for the slightly high lymphocyte count? – S.M.

ANSWER: Lymphocytes are one of the two major types of white blood cells found in the blood (the other are the granulocytes, the most common of which are the neutrophils). High levels of lymphocytes raise suspicion for serious blood disorders such as some leukemias, lymphomas and related blood diseases, but there are other causes. Acute stress can do it, but you have been living with this for many years. Not having a spleen causes high levels of lymphocytes, whether you are born without one or have it surgically removed. Chronic infection is another reason.

I suspect your hematologist did a more sophisticated set of tests looking for blood disorders, and the fact that your level is the same after 12 years also supports my suspicion that this level is normal for you. Normal levels are generally defined as what is found in people without evidence of disease 95% of the time. So, by definition, 5% of normal people will have their result on any given lab fall outside of the normal range. Since yours is just outside of the normal range and, as I said, unchanged for years, I think you can relax your level of anxiety. Periodic blood tests do seem prudent, however, and further testing would be recommended in the event that the count starts getting higher or you develop any new symptoms.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 67-year-old male in relatively good health. I exercise regularly (four times a week). I have been taking medication for hypertension, which is getting much better since I started a plant-based diet three months ago.

About every three months or so for the last five years, there are two half-dollar-sized blood stains on my pillow coming from my right ear. I have no headaches, and my hearing is what it is for my age. My wife is concerned, but I am not. What do you think? – J.G.

ANSWER: I think your wife is wise to be concerned. This is not something I commonly encounter, and the answer is very likely to be found inside your ear through a clinical exam. I do sometimes see small infections in the ear that may bleed, and there are benign tumors of the ear canal and eardrum that may sometimes bleed as well. I have read about a very rare condition of an aneurysm bleeding from the ear. This has been going on a long time, so it's definitely worth an evaluation.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu. © 2022 North America Synd., Inc. All Rights Reserved

NEW RELIGION? CLIMATE change is the worship of the creation (nature worship), while rejecting the creator of the earth (Jesus Christ). And Sunday is the worship day of this new religion (?). Now, the people who are loyal to the creator (Jesus Christ) will observe the 7th day Sabbath (Saturday), so show their loyalty to the creator (Ezekiel 20:12,20) Sunday has always been linked to paganism, which is nature worship. It has never been a day of loyalty to Jesus Christ, because no one, in all the Bible, ever observed Sunday, in honor to Jesus Christ. Tim, 208-217-8942 (text only)

Donna's Day Creative family fun

by Donna Erickson

Use Video Chat to Keep in Touch With Grandkids

"It was a dark and stormy night" could have been an apt beginning to an exciting tale told by Nancy Liddy to her two grandsons in Madison, Wisconsin, via Skype recently. "A summer thunderstorm and resulting power outage left us with just a blur on the screen when we tried to connect for our weekly storytime," she said. "We quickly rescheduled. Neither the boys nor I want to miss the ritual, rain or shine."

Nancy plans ahead with a visit to her neighborhood library to check out three age-appropriate books that four-year-old Dominic and two-year-old Gabriel will enjoy. "I try to find a title that's silly or funny, such as Chris Monroe's 'Monkey with a Tool Belt' series. Humor always grabs their attention and gets us in the storytime mode. I also go for a classic I may have read to my own kids when they were young. 'The Story of Ferdinand' by Munro Leaf is a favorite. The third book is based on a topic that the boys are currently interested in, such as trucks and trains, wild animals or sea life."

It's not only a pleasure to share good reads with the boys, but video-chatting also nurtures her long-distance relationship with them. "Whether it's one of the stories I read, or things they show and tell, we always have something in common to talk about when we see each other in person," she said.

Here are tips for video-chatting with younger children:

- Put a chat time on the calendar. Schedule it for when the kids are rested and fed, and try to make the "date" on a regular day and time.
- Look into the camera as often as possible. Eye contact helps kids stay engaged in conversations and interactions.
- Collect props. Books and items of interest promote curiosity and conversation. Encourage the kids to share their stuffed animals and items of interest, too.
- Create a special way of saying goodbye, such as blowing kisses.

Extra idea: Sunday, Sept. 11 is Grandparents' Day. Send a card, video-chat your grandparents or invite nearby grandparents over for a fun get-together.

THIS MESSAGE IS FOR all Americans, bible readers. The bible states "prove you all things". Then lean not unto your understanding. If the reader misses the instructions then it is a long road that will give you a headache and no understanding. Once understood it's quite simple. The Holy Bible begins with the creation of two worlds. Chapter one is God's word upon the earth. His instruction to the reader is The Tree of Life. Take note of the one that carries death penalty, whosoever sheddeth mans blood he will require their life. It can be defined as striking another with intent to do harm causing blood to flow. Both male and female are considered man in this world, the next world created by the Lord God is in the earth and of spirit. It is here the dead go to be with the Lord who is the son of Man, when seen in the bible it means one who does not follow God's instruction or ways. A follower of Man's ways. In this world the Lord is both God and Satan. His world is titled the knowledge of Good and Evil. Both worlds are of technology and are not natural wonders. That is an amazing story in itself. The two worlds have very different Gods. Now, in the garden were two trees. The Tree of Life which is God's instructions. The Tree of the knowledge of good and evil which is the Lords creation and instruction. Next, follow the instruction to Adam and Eve. They are told by the Lord himself. If they eat of this tree, they will surely die. To eat is to "take in". So, the Lord himself is telling the reader not to take in, believe or follow him in any way or you will surely die. It is for a good reason. Anyone who reads the Bible and cannot define the stories as of a murderer, liar, thief, enslaver, who is a great and terrible, dreadful God with fierce wrath, and follows him is an absolute fool. Thus, God doesn't want those. Since Jesus is the Lords Christ or better worded The Christ of a great and terrible God with fierce wrath! He is not to be followed either, I will use an excerpt from the Gospel "Suffer the little children to come to me as such is the Kingdom of God". I believe the opposite. Keep the children far away with clear instruction. Was Jesus a Son of God? No, if true, he would have lived. He was a son of man, and they followed the same God. Again, sons of God do not die by scripture as they follow God's instruction. Those who follow the Son of man who is God of that world and he does have sons, they are dead yet alive in spirit! The Kingdom of God referred to by Jesus is the pit, lake of fire, hell, spirit world. Perhaps the Lord said it best, No man has ever seen his face and lived! Most Bible readers will know the stories Adam and Eve do eat of the word of the Lord. The Lord put a flaming sword around the Tree of Life, lest they eat of it and live. That sword is the Holy Bible. As a child, my mother did take me to church. I was too little and had no concept or understanding. As a young man I gave it a read and found it to be evil, nonsense! About five years ago I picked it up again with the same findings as earlier. It's been plus three years, I haven't picked up a bible. I over time have considered the writings and lean toward the book being evil. I haven't attended church since childhood nor have I been baptized by any church. I am not a fan of anyone using technology for his or her pleasure. There is an underlying truth. If God doesn't want evil in the world, stop creating it. All evil comes from above. The great mystery of the Bible is that you are not to eat from the Lords tree, which is most all of the Holy Bible. Read and eat of the tree of life only which is God's word. If anyone wishes to respond, please write Box PP, c/o the Exchange, PO Box 11813, Spokane WA 9911. If it's worthy, I will respond. SDJ (Paid Advertisement)

Kid-Friendly Tech Gear For a Season of Outdoor Fun

— StatePoint Media —

(StatePoint) Warm weather has arrived and if you're seeking ways to promote family fun and activity, check out this round-up of kid-friendly tech gear, all of which can inspire creativity during outdoor adventures:

Smartwatches

Featuring dual cameras for pictures, selfies and videos so kids can capture bike rides, playground visits and more on-the-go, the KidiZoom Smartwatch DX3 from VTech is a great outdoor companion for those ages 4 and older. Use the built-in LED light and flash to brighten up dimly lit scenes or use as a flashlight. The watch also features energetic movement games, giving kids an opportunity to challenge themselves and stay active while having fun. There is a social component too -- children can pair with friends who also have a DX3 to securely share preset messages or play games together. Plus, it's a great tool for everyday time-telling -- choose from more than 50 digital and analog animated clockfaces or create custom faces from users' own photos. When it's time to focus, switch to "School" mode to limit the DX3 to a watch only.

Monoculars

Whether spectating at a baseball game or bird watching, the Pankoo 16x52 Monocular Telescope is versatile and easy to use. And because it's compact, it's also ideal for small hands. Waterproof and fog-proof, this sturdy instrument can offer young explorers, naturalists and STEM enthusiasts a clearer and closer look at plants, animals and more in all kinds of weather.

Cameras

Budding photographers ages 4 and up will enjoy using the KidiZoom PrintCam to explore and document the world around them. After snapping images, kids can preview them on the color screen before instantly printing regular or panoramic photos in black and white. With adult supervision, full-color photos and videos can be backed up by transferring them to a computer using the included USB cable. From selfies to sunsets, children can let their creativity shine by adding stickers, filters and borders to any image or video, turning photos into drawings they can color, and by tapping into more than 110 templates and activities, including small greeting cards, printable games and more.

For kid creators who are a bit older (ages 5-10) and ready to hone their technical skills, a good choice is the KidiZoom Creator Cam, a high-definition video camera kit with an included green screen. Set up a shot with the tabletop tripod or selfie stick and built-in microphone, add animated backgrounds, then use the easy on-screen editing and creativity tools to create trick shots and time-lapse videos.

With the coolest tech handy, outdoor fun and adventure awaits children of all ages.

Wolf Report Shows Stable Population Numbers Through 2021

— Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks —

HELENA – Wolf numbers and distribution continue to be stable across Montana, according to numbers released Monday in the 2021 Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks Wolf Report.

"What the data shows us really isn't surprising," said FWP Director Hank Worsech. "Our management of wolves, including ample hunting and trapping opportunities, have kept numbers at a relatively stable level during the past several years."

In understanding this report, people must keep in mind that population trends are monitored by the calendar year, in this case 2021, which is consistent with how FWP and other agencies have tracked wolf populations since the 1980s and how wolf populations are tracked in other areas. However, the wolf hunting and trapping season ended March 15, 2022. The harvest realized during this first three months of 2022 isn't reflected in the 2021 wolf population estimate.

Another interesting aspect of the data is that wolf trapping efforts were down this license year from past years. This means fewer trappers were on the landscape. Potential reasons for this include unfavorable weather conditions during the trapping season.

The 2021 Montana Legislature approved a suite of legislation that added more tools for hunters and trappers for harvesting wolves. The legislature also passed legislation directing FWP to manage wolves in a manner that would reduce numbers to a sustainable level above minimum recovery goals.

In response, the Fish and Wildlife Commission increased bag limits, allowed snaring outside of lynx protection zones, and extended the season. Additionally, the commission also set harvest threshold numbers in each FWP region and at a statewide scale that required them to reconvene if those harvest levels were met. Ultimately, the commission closed wolf season in southwest Montana early because the pre-established threshold was met.

"We are following the law," Worsech said. "And are doing so in a way that provides certainty that wolf populations in Montana will remain off the Endangered Species List."

By the numbers

The estimated wolf population in Montana at the end of 2021 is 1,141. This is down 40 wolves from 1,181 in 2020. This is not a statistically significant difference. In the last 10 years, wolf populations saw an estimated high of 1,256 in 2011 and a low of 1,113 in 2017. The small difference in these two numbers demonstrates a population trend that is very stable.

At the end of 2021, Montana had an estimated 192 wolf packs. This is down from an estimated 198 in 2020. In the last 10 years, estimated pack numbers have fluctuated from a high of 205 in 2012 to a low of 186 in 2017.

Methodology

FWP employed new population estimation methodology in 2007, called integrated patch occupancy model (iPOM). This methodology has undergone a scientific peer review both of its individual components and the cumulative process as a whole.

iPOM pulls together a variety of different sources of data, including information from FWP biologists, to produce population and distribution estimates. Another important source of data come from hunter harvest surveys that are conducted by FWP every year. These surveys ask deer and elk hunters if they saw wolves while hunting and, if so, where. These surveys are done after hunting season and are necessary to make an accurate estimate.

Fewer Gifts This Year? Give Kids More Love

Parents hit hard by the struggling economy might wonder how to explain to their children why there aren't as many presents under the tree this year.

Christy Buchanan, professor of psychology at Wake Forest University, reminds parents that "children, in their heart of hearts, don't want a lot of things from their parents as much as they want love from them and time with them. In the long run, it's love, shared time and quality interactions that they'll remember."

"The problem is, we often express love through gifts," says Buchanan, who studies parent-child relationships and teaches courses on effective parent-child relations. "We worry they won't feel loved if we don't provide material things."

She offers a few suggestions for families who are cutting back this holiday season:

- Don't be overly apologetic for what children are not getting. Although it's OK to acknowledge a child's desires or even disappointment, parents should focus on the things for which the child and family can be grateful.
- Try to be upbeat and positive. Children are more likely to be positive if the parents are. Focus on the gift of time. Think about what the family can do together that is fun and memorable, and treat it like a gift.
- Instead of going shopping, design time around what your kids enjoy, and make that special. Make plans to bake cookies and drink hot chocolate, play a favorite board game or shoot baskets at the park.
- Try to minimize exposure to commercials and marketing. The more children see, the more they think they want and the more likely they are to be disappointed.
- For younger children who expect Santa to bring lots of presents, small, inexpensive gifts like a ball or a game can be the basis for fun family time on Christmas Day. Shift the focus to a group activity and away from items that may be missing from under the tree.
- For teenagers, things often become more important. But, teens also are old enough to understand when parents explain that money for expensive items just isn't in the family budget this year. For the items they most want, parents can work with them on a longer-term plan to save for those things.
- At all ages, parents should convey a confidence that things will be OK.
- Parents should not make promises they cannot keep. Be honest with children about what you can or cannot afford.
- If a family is having to cut back, a parent can use the opportunity to emphasize that their relationships are the most important thing.

"It comes down to communication," Buchanan says. Parents can look for ways beyond presents to convey their love for their children

Vegetarian Polenta Lasagna

When you think of lasagna, wide strips of pasta separating layers of cheese, tomato sauce and meat probably come to mind. How about a twist on the all-time family favorite?

For a change of pace, try this exciting new version: Instead of pasta, you'll be layering this hearty lasagna dish with polenta, a comfort-food staple of northern Italy. Discover how it adds a wonderful texture and taste. And, don't forget to get your kids involved in the preparation. They can grate, layer and stir to make this a new family favorite.

- VEGETARIAN POLENTA LASAGNA
- First, prepare the polenta in a large pot. You'll need:
- 2-1/2 cups low-fat milk
  - 2-1/2 cups water
  - 2-1/2 cups yellow cornmeal
  - 3 tablespoons butter
  - 1 teaspoon salt

Combine milk, water, cornmeal and salt in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring frequently with a long-handled spoon. Reduce heat and simmer gently for 15 minutes. Continue stirring to prevent sticking until mixture is thick. Stir in 2 tablespoons butter. Set aside to cool.

- Next are the filling ingredients:
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
  - 1 tablespoon butter or olive oil
  - 1 egg
  - 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

- 1/2 cup ricotta cheese
- 1 10-ounce box frozen chopped spinach thawed, drained and squeezed dry (a good job for your preschooler)
- 2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil (optional)
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 of a 26-ounce jar of your favorite spaghetti sauce

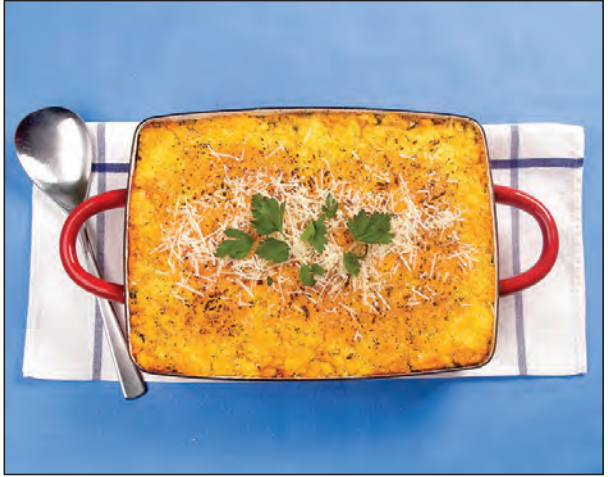

Preheat oven to 425 degrees Fahrenheit. Butter a 9-inch-by-11-inch baking dish. Saute onion in the butter or olive oil until soft.

Let one of your kids beat the egg lightly with a whisk in a small bowl. Pour it into a mixing bowl with the sauteed onion, cheeses, spinach, basil, salt and pepper. Stir just until combined.

To assemble, spread a layer of the cooked polenta in the buttered baking dish. Pour spaghetti sauce over the polenta and spread evenly.

Add a layer of cheese and spinach filling. Continue to layer ingredients, leaving a polenta layer on top. Grate extra Parmesan cheese over the final polenta layer, if you wish. Bake for about 30 minutes.

Let stand for 10 minutes before cutting. Serve with a fresh green salad and French bread.

Each December, the Hauser Lake Fire Department hosts this fundraising event on the second Sunday in memory of Shalena. Proceeds help a local family with a child who suffers from a serious, often terminal, disease. Proceeds from this year's Breakfast will benefit Jacob, a 17 year old from Genesee, ID with leukemia. Suggested donations are $3 per person or $10 per family.

Jacob

How Breakfast with Santa Started

Each December, the Hauser Lake Fire Department hosts this fundraising event to help a local family in need. John and Betty Mobbs started the event in 1985 when they worked to raise money to help alleviate medical bills and financial distress for the family of a Hauser Lake volunteer firefighter, Gary, whose daughter was diagnosed with cancer.

Shalena lost her battle but her memory lives on with the Breakfast. Shalena's Breakfast With Santa has become an annual tradition within the community of Hauser, Idaho with help from area businesses and North Idaho citizens.

To suggest a family as next year's beneficiary or for questions regarding Breakfast with Santa, email santa@hauserfire.org.

10 Tips For Firearm Handling Safety While Out Hunting This Fall

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

While firearm accidents are rare, human error or inattention is the leading cause

Statistics from the National Shooting Sports Foundation show that hunting with firearms is actually one of the safest recreational activities in the country. That's not to say that accidents can't happen, and practicing safe firearm handling can greatly reduce the risk.

In recent years, about 280,000 people annually hunted in Idaho. Even with that many people in the field, there are typically very few, if any, hunting accidents involving firearms in Idaho.

"Although there are very few firearms-related hunting accidents, we'd prefer to have none," said Brenda Beckley, Fish and Game's Hunter Education Administrator.

"Among the most common causes of the accidents we have is when firearms are loaded when they shouldn't be — such as putting it into or removing it from a vehicle — or while navigating through rough terrain. Those accidents are easily avoided if you adhere to the basics of firearm safety."

In the hopes of avoiding firearm accidents whether hunting (or target shooting), Fish and Game offers these guidelines:

- 1. Treat every firearm as if it is loaded. When another person hands you a firearm, assume it is loaded even if you are told it is not. Ask anyone handing you a firearm to open the action before they hand it to you.
- 2. Always control the muzzle of your firearm. As long as the muzzle is pointed in a safe direction, it is unlikely someone will get hurt, even if the firearm discharges unexpectedly. A safety is a mechanical device which can fail, so there is no instance where you can disregard the muzzle's direction simply because the safety is on.
- 3. Never touch the trigger until you are ready to shoot. Keep your fingers away from the trigger while loading or unloading. Never pull the trigger on any firearm with the safety on or anywhere in between "safe" and "fire." Again, the gun's safety serves as a supplement to proper gun handling but does not serve as a substitute for common sense.

- 4. Never point a firearm at anything you do not intend to shoot. Carry and use binoculars to check out the hillside. Never look through your scope at something you can't identify.

- 5. Be certain of your target (and what is beyond it). A safe hunter makes certain that movement or sound is a game animal that is in season before pointing a muzzle. Prior to taking a shot, a hunter must check the background for other people, livestock, buildings, equipment or roads to make sure there is a safe backstop.

Mistaking a person for game is one of the most common causes of hunting accidents, which can be serious or fatal. One way to make sure every other person in the field can clearly identify you is by wearing hunter orange. While a safety measure recommended for those on both sides of the gun, Idaho is one of few states where hunter orange is not required, except for hunters on wildlife management areas where pheasants are stocked during the pheasant season. A hunter orange hat meets this requirement.

- 6. Be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions before shooting. Make a habit to check your barrel often. Even a small obstruction in the bore can cause the barrel to bulge or worse ... explode.

The same can happen by placing a smaller gauge or caliber cartridge into a gun, such as a 20-gauge shell in a 12-gauge shotgun. This can result in the smaller cartridge acting as an obstruction when a cartridge of proper size is fired. Always pay close attention to each cartridge you insert into your firearm and only carry the correct ammunition for the gun you're carrying.

- 7. Never cross a fence, climb a tree or do anything potentially hazardous with a loaded gun. There will be times when common sense and the basic rules of firearms safety will require you to unload your gun for maximum safety. Never pull or push a loaded firearm toward yourself or another person.

- 8. Store firearms and ammunition separately. While most gun owners consider this most of the year, many leave guns and ammunition in their vehicles during the hunting season. Firearms should be unloaded for safety when in the vehicle. Ammunition should always remain inaccessible to children.

- 9. Alcohol and guns don't mix. If there is alcohol in your hunting camp, make certain all firearms are put away before the alcohol comes out. Taking out ol' Grandad's 70-year-old wood stock rifle to show your buddies after you've had a few beers can lead to a tragic mistake.

- 10. Don't be timid when it comes to gun safety. Don't hesitate to let your hunting partners know when you think they are putting themselves or others at risk. Gun safety starts with you.

Plug Into These Electrical Safety Hints From the Experts

ESFi offers Twelve Holiday Safety Tips to keep your home protected from household electrical fires during the season of decoration.

1. Keep decorations at least 3 feet away from heat sources – especially those with an open flame, like fireplaces and candles. And remember to blow out your candles when you leave the room or go to sleep.
2. The best decorations are safe decorations, so when you are decorating, make sure not to run cords under rugs or furniture, out of windows, or across walkways and sidewalks.
3. If you have a natural Christmas tree water it to keep it fresh and safe. Real trees can dry up and turn into kindling in no time at all. Get rid of the tree after Christmas. Dried-out trees are a fire hazard and should not be left in the home or garage.
4. Always turn off your decorations when you leave your home and when you're sleeping. Most deadly fires happen while people are asleep.
5. Be mindful of how you are using electrical outlets. If you're using extension cords or adapters that add receptacles, consider having a qualified electrician add more outlets to your home.

Extension cords are a common cause of home fires.

6. Only use electronics in dry areas. As tempting as it is, you just can't decorate your aquarium with icicle lights.
7. Remember that phones and tablets should stay on your nightstand. We all love falling asleep to the muffled crooning of Bing Crosby and Michael Bublé, but overheated electronics under pillows and blankets are dangerous.
8. Need a perfect gift idea? How about a smoke alarm? Every home needs a working smoke alarm in each bedroom, outside sleeping areas, and on every level, including the basement. And remember to test your own to make sure they're working.
9. If you're using a space heater, switch it off before leaving the room. It only takes seconds for a fire to start if a space heater tips over or comes in contact with something combustible, like a blanket or curtains.
10. Inspect your decorations and discard any that are damaged or worn out. Talk to your aunt about that life-sized Elvis-dressed-as-Santa statue – it's falling apart, it's creepy, it's got to go.
11. Keep batteries stored safely in their packaging and out of reach of anything that might try to eat them, like small children and pets. Eating a battery can be deadly.
12. The best gift for your family is to upgrade to arc-fault circuit interrupter breakers or outlets. It is estimated that half of the electrical fires that occur every year could be prevented by AFCIs. All upgrades should be completed by a qualified electrician.

Visit esfi.org for a ton of information on keeping your home and workplace safe. The Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI) is the premier non-profit organization dedicated exclusively to promoting electrical safety at home and in the workplace.

2022 Big Game Hunting Forecast North Central Montana

— Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks —

As is often the case, hunters have both good news and bad news when it comes to the big game hunting outlook for 2022 in FWP's Region 4, north central Montana.

While elk numbers are at all-time high levels with extra harvest opportunities in some areas, mule deer numbers generally still remain lower than in previous years. Mule deer in some mountain ranges experienced significant declines in the last 10 to 15 years, and although mule deer populations in prairie habitats are faring a bit better, drought conditions have hindered populations in some of the eastern areas of Region 4. White-tailed deer populations are considered strong, but pronghorn numbers are mixed, and in many areas, they have still not completely recovered from the tough winter of 2017/18.

Along the northern Rocky Mountain Front, biologist Ryan Rauscher reports that elk numbers are generally above their long-term average, with bull to cow ratios at or near average. In the Sweetgrass Hills, elk numbers remain well over objective, giving hunters opportunity to harvest antlerless elk.

The southern Rocky Mountain Front shows overall stability in elk numbers compared to recent years, according to area biologist Brent Lonner. Sun River elk remain near long-term average for the population with bull to cow numbers slightly above long-term average. Elk numbers southwest of Augusta and in the Birdtail Hills remain above long-term average, with extended (shoulder) seasons in place for both areas to help address high elk numbers.

In most cases, elk populations throughout the Little Belt, Castle and eastern Big Belt Mountains area are at the high end of the range observed in recent times. "Elk numbers in the western Little Belts and eastern Big Belts have increased the most, despite the liberal hunting regulations that have been in place there for some time," said biologist Jay Kolbe.

Near Great Falls, biologist Jake Doggett says that elk are doing well in the Highwood Mountains and Devils Kitchen hunting districts, where numbers remain well above long-term averages. There was a record high elk count this year, including bulls, across HDs 445 and 455 this past March. Elk are very close to objective numbers in the Little Belts (old HD 413).

Across much of the Golden Triangle, mule deer populations remain above average overall with some increases in antlerless licenses. White-tailed deer numbers are increasing across much of Rauscher's and Lonner's areas as well, and in several of their hunting districts, they report that white-tailed deer numbers are strong and should provide good harvest opportunities for both bucks and antlerless deer. Hunters can expect deer distribution to be somewhat patchy because of the drought this year, and they will be concentrated in areas with good forage and cover.

Kolbe reports that although mule deer in the Little Belt, Castle and eastern Big Belt Mountains experienced significant declines 10 to 15 years ago, their numbers have been steadily increasing since then. "I've seen some very nice bucks come out of this area during the last several seasons," said Jay Kolbe, FWP wildlife biologist based in white Sulphur Springs.

Mule deer numbers in the agricultural areas near Great Falls are doing well, but populations in the mountain/ mountain foothill areas are still rebounding from lower numbers of the past few years. In some areas near the mountains, mule deer numbers are more than 25 percent below long-term average and the regulations changed to reflect this, so only mule deer bucks can be harvested there on the general deer license. White-tailed deer numbers remain strong and there should be great opportunities for hunters. Doggett suggests utilizing the available whitetail B licenses in the mountain foothill areas where the mule deer regulations switched to antlered buck only.

Pronghorn population numbers in the Golden Triangle are good. Near the Sweetgrass Hills, pronghorn have been well under long-term average in previous years but have recovered somewhat and are just slightly below average this year. The result is more opportunity with an increase in both either-sex and doe/fawn licenses. In the heart of the Golden Triangle district of HD 404, pronghorn numbers have been above average the past couple years. Increased hunter opportunity and drought have brought down pronghorn numbers and licenses have been reduced slightly this year, reflecting the lower numbers seen in summer surveys.

Pronghorn numbers in the greater Augusta area and locations near the Birdtail Hills continue to show stability in numbers, although slightly below long-term average observations. According to Lonner, July surveys showed near average buck numbers but below average fawn numbers. For that reason, among others, pronghorn licenses were reduced in HD 444 for the 2022 season.

Kolbe also reported that pronghorn populations are also doing well. "I saw around 60 fawns per 100 does during my pronghorn survey flights this summer, which is good fawn production," he said." Overall pronghorn numbers both north and south of the Little Belts (HDs 430 and 490) continue to recover from declines we saw following the harsh winters a few years ago."

Surveys suggest that pronghorn across many of Doggett's hunting districts are still recovering from the tough winters of 2017 and 2018 and also recent drought conditions. For the most part numbers are still below long-term averages. Fawn production seemed better in areas with more cropland, but buck to doe ratios were higher in the mountain foothill areas.

Making wreaths

from natural items has been done since ancient times. In Mediterranean cultures, wreaths worn on the head showed a person's job, social rank and achievements. Laurel wreaths crowned the victors in the Olympic Games. Wreaths were made from the harvested crops and hung up to show how the gods had blessed the household during the year.

Second Chance Pets: Brodie

Hi, I'm Brodie! I am a 7 year old male purebred silver Labrador. I am great with other dogs, cats and all people. I am slowing down a bit, not high energy, and very well trained for family life. I LOVE snuggles and warm beds near the fire. I am quiet, well behaved and not really sure how I ended up homeless for the Howlidays, but sure am happy I landed here in beautiful North Idaho! I'd love to be your next great outdoor exploration buddy!

Please look up all my info. and many more pictures at Second Chance Pet Rescue in Hayden ID or contact idahocoondog@yahoo.com
