Hayden Summer Concert Series

Thursday, July 6th:
The Red Books
— KOEP Concerts —

KOEP Concerts is honored to continue the 22 year legacy of Chris Guggemos's free concert series in North Idaho. One of the highlights of summer in Hayden is the weekly concert in McIntire Family Park. A great band will be featured every Thursday through August 17 (except July 27 due to Hayden Days).

The first show, on Thursday, July 6th, will feature The Red Books, playing R&R, country, and a little bit of everything. Eric's Dawg House will be there with hot dogs, milkshakes and smiles. Next week will be Dr. Phil and the Enablers.

The performance will take place from 6-8:30pm at McIntire Family Park, behind Hayden City Hall, located at 8930 N. Government Way in Downtown Hayden. Seating is casual and families are welcome. Be sure to bring a lawn chair. And there is a food concession, so leave your picnic at home. For information, contact KOEP Concerts at www.koepconcerts.com.

The Hayden Concert Series is presented by STCU and sponsored by The Nickel's Worth and many local businesses and families.

Common Parasite Found In Idaho Panfish: Yellow Grubs

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

Because their target host is a bird, they don't pose much threat to humans

After catching a small pile of bluegill at your favorite local fishing spot, you go home to start fileting. Your mouth is watering thinking of the soon to be fish tacos you'll make. But as you cut into the first fish you notice a grub-looking worm in the meat, and wonder: What is that? Should you throw the fish out? What should you do?

Most likely you've just encountered a common panfish parasite called "Yellow Grub," and although it looks like something from an episode of FearFactor, we don't recommend eating these raw.

Panfish with Yellow Grub disease are infected with tiny yellow or white "grubs" that reside in their meat. These yellow grubs host are in panfish because they ultimately need to get inside a fish-eating bird, like herons, to reproduce. Yellow grubs start out as juveniles in snails, which get eaten by panfish, which then get eaten by birds.

Because their target host is a bird, they don't pose much threat to humans, but we don't recommend eating these grubs, even if your fishing buddy dares you to. When eaten raw, yellow grubs can attach to your throat, causing irritation and sore throat.

If you find grubs in your catch while cleaning a fish, you don't need to throw it out. Just make sure to cook your fish thoroughly. Yellow grubs are most prevalent in the spring, with a small resurgence in fall. Despite many panfish carrying these parasites, research suggests grubs have little to no impact on panfish populations.

Skip the Drive-Thru With Fast, Effortless, Budget-Friendly Dinners

“Oops! I totally forgot about dinner!” It happens. Maybe you didn’t actually forget about dinner, but your hectic, nonstop day happened. Suddenly it’s 6:00 and the family is looking to you because they’re starving. What’s for dinner?

There are so many reasons to draw a blank at dinnertime. Sometimes plans go awry. Someone accidentally unplugged the crockpot, the chicken didn’t defrost, you didn’t make it to the store, or you set out the dinner ingredients and the kids ate half. I feel your pain, because I’ve been there! Honestly, between work, school, homework, activities and running a household, it’s a wonder our families get fed at all.

Before you call for pizza or head to the drive-thru, stop! You have a backup plan because you’re reading this column right now. Welcome to the SOS meal. As in “calling out an SOS — Save Our Supper!” Or sanity, you decide. An SOS meal is a planned set of economical ingredients that you always keep in your pantry, intended to guarantee a nearly effortless, healthy, inexpensive dinner that practically makes itself.

Here’s a list of nonperishable pantry staples to keep on hand to make dinner in a flash. Canned beans (such as black beans, chickpeas or kidney beans), canned tomatoes (diced, crushed or sauce), canned vegetables (corn, peas or green beans), pasta (varieties like spaghetti, penne or macaroni), rice (white, brown or basmati), canned tuna or salmon, chicken or vegetable broth, jarred sauces (marinara, pesto or curry paste).

Here is a recipe for dinner that takes less than 10 minutes to prepare and has your family sitting down to dinner in under 30 minutes. It takes longer than that to go through the drive-thru at McKentucky Junior King.

LINGUINE WITH GARLIC LEMON TUNA

The most time-consuming variable of this recipe is boiling the water for the pasta. Using better quality tuna improves this dish, but use what you have on hand. If you happen to have a fresh lemon lying around, use it, but bottled juice is absolutely fine.

www.JasonCoblentz.com

Make a restaurant-worthy linguini dish in minutes

- Yield: 4 servings
Total time: 25 minutes
- 8 to 12 ounces linguine or other pasta
 - 3 tablespoons olive oil
 - 3 garlic cloves, thinly sliced
 - 2 (5 ounce) cans tuna, drained
 - 1 (15 ounce) can cannellini beans,

drained and rinsed
2 tablespoons lemon juice, plus zest if using fresh lemon
Salt & pepper to taste
2 tablespoons capers
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped

Starting with hot tap water, bring a pot of salted water to a boil. Assemble the ingredients, then start opening and draining the cans of tuna and beans. Add the pasta to the boiling water and cook according to package directions.

Meanwhile, in a large skillet, heat the olive oil over low heat. Add the garlic and cook until fragrant, about 1 minute. Add the tuna, beans, lemon juice and zest, salt and pepper. Gently stir and heat through. By now your pasta should be about ready. Reserve 1/2 cup of the pasta cooking water, then drain the pasta and immediately add to sauce in the skillet. Add the capers and 1 tablespoon of the chopped parsley and toss until the spaghetti is well coated. Add the reserved pasta water as needed to thin out the sauce. Serve warm, garnished with remaining parsley, and pass the pepper mill.

The most important take-away (so you don’t pay for takeout) is to have a plan before you need one. By the way, quick pantry recipes also work when you just don’t feel like cooking so you can get out of the kitchen and move on with your life!

Bird-Shaped Whistles

People have been captivated by bird songs for centuries. At some point, clever artisans realized that whistles could not only imitate birds, but they could also be made to look like birds.

Ceramic bird-shaped whistles have been made for hundreds of years all over the world. Examples dating to about 1000 A.D. have been found in Central America. Were they made as bird calls? Musical instruments? Toys?

This whistle, which sold for $2,006 at Conestoga Auction Co., was made in 19th-century Pennsylvania of redware clay. Today, inexpensive mass-produced bird-shaped whistles are made of ceramics, metal or plastic. The 20th century Italian company Alessi put a red whistling bird on the spout of a stainless steel tea kettle, creating an icon of modern design.

Q My father was a writer, and I just was tempted to buy a light blue Sears “Tutor” typewriter in its original case for $35 that reminded me of his typewriter. Are typewriters collectible?

A Yes, they are very popular collectibles right now. People love the “retro” way of writing and maybe seeing a typewriter reminds them of their parents or grandparents. Christopher Sholes, an American mechanical engineer born in 1819, is credited with inventing the first practical modern typewriter in 1866. Five years later, after dozens of experiments, Sholes and his associates produced a model like today’s typewriters. The Sholes’ typewriter keys jammed easily. To solve the problem, he and an associate split up keys for letters commonly used together to slow down typing. This became today’s standard “QWERTY” keyboard. I hope you bought that Sears typewriter. I have seen exact same ones being sold for $180 and higher.

F&G Commission Approves Summer Chinook Seasons

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

Summer Chinook salmon seasons will open on the South Fork Salmon, Upper Salmon and Lochsa rivers

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission met via conference call and approved summer Chinook salmon seasons for the South Fork Salmon, Upper Salmon and Lochsa rivers. The seasons will open Thursday, June 22 and remain open seven days a week until harvest goals are achieved.

By June 13, about 85% of the returning summer Chinook had already been counted at Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River, which is the first dam the fish cross after leaving the Pacific Ocean.

Based on those counts, preseason estimates for sport angler harvest for adult Chinook is about:

- 650 Chinook for the South Fork of the Salmon River
- 900 Chinook for the Upper Salmon River
- 50 Chinook for the Lochsa River

Fish managers anticipate lower Chinook salmon returns to the Pahasimeroi Fish Hatchery and made the decision not to open a summer Chinook season on the Salmon River below the mouth of the Pahasimeroi river to allow broodstock to return to the hatchery.

Fishing on the Upper Salmon River will be open from the posted boundary at the Highway 75 bridge approximately 250 yards upstream of the mouth of the East Fork Salmon River upstream to the posted boundary approximately 100 yards downstream from the Idaho Fish and Game Sawtooth Hatchery weir and trap.

Fishing on the South Fork of the Salmon River will be open from the posted boundary at Jakie Creek Bridge near Reed Ranch Landing Strip upstream approximately 23 miles to the posted boundary approximately 100 yards downstream from the Idaho Fish and Game South Fork Salmon River weir and trap.

Fishing on the Lochsa River will be open from Lowell Bridge upstream to Twin Bridges immediately upstream from the confluence of Crooked Fork and Colt Killed creeks.

Bag limits

Bag and possession limits for the South Fork Salmon and Lochsa rivers are four Chinook daily, of which only one may be an adult 24-inches or longer. Possession is 12, and only three of which may be adults.

On the Upper Salmon River, the daily bag limit is four Chinook Salmon, of which two may be adults and the possession is 12 salmon, only six of which may be adults.

Season limits

No person may take more than 20 adult Chinook salmon statewide during 2023 salmon seasons occurring prior to Aug. 10, 2023. Fishing will close Aug. 10, or by closure order signed by the Fish and Game Director, whichever comes first.

EarthTalk® Questions & Answers About Our Environment

Dear EarthTalk: Is the recent lifting of quota restrictions on wolf hunting in Montana north of Yellowstone National Park a threat to the reintroduced wolf population there?

—J. W., Bend, OR

When the last gray wolf in Yellowstone National Park was gunned down in 1926, park managers and ranchers on neighboring lands alike rejoiced together that the dark predator of the range would no longer torment them. Wolves were blamed for poaching livestock as well as wreaking havoc on populations of traditional “game” animals like elk and deer. But a funny thing happened once the wolves were gone. Elk numbers started to skyrocket. In essence, without the wolf around to keep its population numbers in check, the elk were eating everything in sight, including the new young shoots of willow, aspen and other trees key to keeping Yellowstone’s ecosystems in balance.

By the 1990s biologists managed to convince the federal government that these predators are essential to the health of the ecosystem, and gray wolves were famously reintroduced back into Yellowstone. The results have been nothing short of amazing with regard to ecosystem recovery and the return of various species of wildlife that used to be common there a century ago.

But ranchers on the periphery of the park (Wyoming, Idaho and Montana all border Yellowstone) have maintained their antipathy toward wolves given the primal canids’ predilection for killing domesticated cows outside of the park for a quick and easy meal. Such situations are rare given that there is plenty of wild game for the wolves to hunt within their home base inside of Yellowstone’s borders. Nevertheless, anti-environmentalists and otherwise conservative pundits have joined forces with ranchers to politicize the wolf reintroduction issue. No doubt, there is a lot of political pressure from those who make their living outside of the national park to lift all hunting restrictions on wolves that stray onto state lands.

So, it comes as no surprise that Montana would lift quotas limiting hunters and trappers to just two gray wolf kills each in regions bordering Yellowstone. A similar move in Idaho months earlier means Yellowstone’s wolves are now getting it from all angles.

And, indeed, with more than 15 wolf kills in the Montana borderlands alone so far this winter, it remains to be seen whether or not the easing of the state’s wolf hunting restrictions is such a good idea after all. Back in 1995-1997, 42 gray wolves were relocated from Western Canada and northwestern Montana to Yellowstone; today 123 gray wolves spread themselves across nine different packs free-roaming within the national park. While the population has grown nicely and remained stable for the last decade or so, increased hunting could send these packs into dangerous territory when it comes to their ability to reproduce themselves.

Sadly, for the wolves (and for us), a false dichotomy persists that we can’t have successful livestock agriculture and preserve the ecological integrity of the world’s first national park at the same time. But the fact remains that we can, especially with programs to reimburse ranchers for their rarely occurring losses to wolf predation. In the meantime, the states are likely to make it easier and easier to shoot or trap wolves that unwittingly cross over into state lands, and politics will continue to be behind it all.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 10, 2011, the British newspaper News of the World published its final edition after 168 years in print, when owner Rupert Murdoch received a high amount of criticism following accusations against his staff that complained of phone hacking and bribing police to obtain the paper's stories.

• On July 11, 1977, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor, by Jimmy Carter, who called King "the conscience of a generation" who "made our nation stronger because he made it better."

• On July 12, 1957, Dwight D. Eisenhower became the first sitting American president to opt for flying in a helicopter over using a motorcade to get to his destination (in this case, Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland).

• On July 13, 1930, France defeated Mexico 4-1 and the United States defeated Belgium 3-0 in the first-ever World Cup football matches, played simultaneously in host city Montevideo, Uruguay. The World Cup has since become the world's most watched sporting event.

• On July 14, 1882, gunfighter John Ringo was found dead in Turkey Creek Canyon, Arizona. Romanticized as a supposedly Shakespeare-quoting fellow of honor and courage whose wit was as quick as his gun, Ringo was not formally educated and came from a struggling, working-class Indiana family, but cultivated the image of a refined gentleman.

• On July 15, 1986, Columbia Records dropped Johnny Cash from its roster after a 26-year partnership, due to changing tastes in country music and declining album sales. At the time, Cash hadn't made it into the Top 10 with a single since releasing "The Baron" in 1981.

• On July 16, 2007, an earthquake with a magnitude of 6.8 struck central Japan, killing nine people and damaging hundreds of homes, as well as one of the world's largest nuclear power plants, which had a small electrical fire and leaked of radioactive air and water into the environment. The incident prompted increased safety in power plants over concern of a repeated scare.

POP, ROCK & SOUL TRIVIA BY MICK HARPER

1. Which song includes the phrase, "I know" over 20 times?
2. Who wrote and released "Spirit in the Sky"?
3. Where did the Thompson Twins get their name?
4. Who sang "I'm Never Giving Up" in a Eurovision contest?
5. Name the song that contains these lyrics: "I will love you longer than forever, Promise me that you will leave me never."

Answers

1. "Ain't No Sunshine," by Bill Withers in 1971. He'd intended to write another verse instead of all the "I know" phrases but was talked into leaving it alone.
2. Norman Greenbaum, in 1969. Greenbaum said he was inspired by watching Westerns on television to write the song.
3. From two detectives in the comic strip "The Adventures of Tintin," who looked alike but were not twins. The Thompson Twins group was never a duo, but ranged from three to seven members.
4. Sweet Dreams, in 1983. They represented the United Kingdom.
5. "The Hawaiian Wedding Song," by Andy Williams, in 1958. The song was also covered by Brook Benton, Elvis Presley and others. The original song, "Ke Kali Nei Au" ("Waiting There for Thee"), was written in 1926 by Charles E. King, a Hawaiian legislator and songwriter.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On July 17, 1941, New York Yankees center fielder Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak of 56 consecutive games ended as 67,468 people watched him at bat against the Cleveland Indians. His record still stands, though Pete Rose came the closest to matching it when he hit in 44 consecutive games in 1978.
- On July 18, 1984, 21 people were shot to death and 19 more were injured in a San Ysidro, California, McDonald's by James Oliver Huberty, who told his wife as he was leaving his house with three guns that he was "hunting humans." The fatal spree ended only when Huberty was fatally shot by a SWAT team sniper.
- On July 19, 1879, Doc Holliday committed his first murder, killing Mike Gordon, who'd tried to persuade a girl working at Holliday's New Mexico saloon to run away with him. When she declined, the frustrated Gordon began shooting into the saloon from the street, and Holliday returned fire, dropping him with one bullet.
- On July 20, 1963, Jan and Dean's "Surf City," which trumpeted "Two girls for every boy!" in its opening line, reached No. 1 on the U.S. pop charts. Penned by the Beach Boys' Brian Wilson, the tune helped create an image of California as an endless summer paradise.
- On July 21, 1925, John T. Scopes, a science and math teacher in Dayton, Tennessee, was convicted of violating the state's law against teaching evolution in public schools in what became known as the "Trial of the Century." He was ordered to pay a $100 fine, but the sentence was overturned on a technicality.
- On July 22, 2003, U.S. Army Pvt. Jessica Lynch, a POW rescued from an Iraqi hospital, received a hero's welcome upon returning to her hometown of Palestine, West Virginia. Lynch and several others were captured by Iraqi forces four months earlier while riding in a supply convoy, when their unit was ambushed after a wrong turn.
- On July 23, 1829, William Austin Burt patented the typographer, a precursor to the typewriter. It wasn't a commercial success, possibly due to its slow speed or the lack of a widespread market. The working model constructed for the patent was destroyed in the 1836 Patent Office fire.

Cribbage Board

Do you like to play games on your phone while you're on a long trip? Today's travel games have plenty of predecessors. Cribbage, a card game where players keep score with pegs on a board, is believed to have been invented in the 17th century. It became a favorite of sailors and was especially popular on whaling ships.

Sailors would make their own boards out of carved whalebone, animal teeth or tusks. This 19th-century game board, which sold for $531 at an Eldred's auction, has pierced whalebone panels on an ebony and mahogany board. Sailors continued playing cribbage after whaling declined. Most ships still have a cribbage board today. The U.S. Navy has a board that gets handed down to the oldest submarine in the Pacific fleet, a tradition that originated when an officer was dealt a perfect hand in a game played during World War II.

Q I have a Mexican silver pitcher inlaid with iridescent shells and marked "Alpaca." Is "Alpaca" the maker? What can you tell me about it?

A Alpaca silver is a metal. It isn't really silver, but an alloy of copper, nickel and zinc that may also be called "nickel silver" or "German silver." It was first used in China and exported to Europe. In 1823, German metalsmiths created a version of nickel silver that was trademarked "Alpacca." Use of Alpaca spread throughout Europe and the Americas. It can be a base for electroplated nickel silver. Today, alpaca silver is often used in jewelry, tableware and decorative items. It is usually marked "Alpaca" or "Alpacca." It is more durable than silver, sells for lower prices and may have a less shiny finish than silver.

TIP: Team-signed baseballs should have about 26 autographs, including the entire starting lineup, star pitchers and other key members of the team. A star's signature on the sweet spot is desirable, but that spot is sometimes reserved for the manager.

Cribbage is a centuries-old travel game. In the 19th century, sailors on whaling ships made and used boards like this one to pass the time on long voyages.

Osprey Caught In Bailing Twine Rescued By Lewiston Fire Department

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

Several calls came into Idaho Fish and Game office regarding an osprey that had its leg entangled in bailing twine and was hanging from its nest along Snake River Avenue in Lewiston on Monday, June 12.

Fish and Game wildlife staff and Lewiston Fire Department responded to the site. Lewiston Fire Department used their bucket truck to access the nest platform.

After a short time, fire rescue staff freed the twine from the osprey's leg, loaded the disoriented bird into the bucket and lowered the boom down to safety. Fish and Game staff assessed the condition of the osprey and determined that it seemed healthy enough to be let go.

The osprey was placed in the shade under the Bryden canyon/Southway bridge and left alone for a short time to see if it would fly on its own. When Fish and Game staff returned, there were no signs of the osprey. Fish and Game staff anticipates that the osprey gained enough strength to fly off on its own.

This situation presents a good opportunity to remind livestock owners, to properly dispose of baling twine. Unfortunately, animals such as deer, birds, etc. can get caught up in pieces of twine, wire, and other loose items which can cause stress and physical harm to the animal. These materials can be difficult to remove from the animal or its nest.

Thank you to all the concerned citizens for reporting this incident and to our helpful community members including the Lewiston Fire Department for their contribution to this successful rescue of the osprey from the tangled nest.

For questions contact the Idaho Fish and Game office at 208-799-5010.

Make Mashed Potatoes Ahead of Time

How do you mash your potatoes? Little did I realize until I casually asked around that there are as many techniques and add-ins as there are families who love eating them. Satisfying and delicious, mashed potatoes are one of the first dishes my kids learned to prepare. While my 10-year-old son took on the peeling and slicing, my 8-year-old daughter engaged her muscles 25 minutes later, mashing the tender chunks.

Whether you rice 'em, mash 'em or cream 'em with an electric mixer, let's face it – they do take time to prepare from scratch. That's where this make-ahead recipe fits into my schedule, especially during the busier months out of the year. Prep this large batch a day or two in advance, getting your kids in the "mash," and relax knowing they'll be ready to pop in the oven to serve when you need them.

MAKE-AHEAD MASHED POTATOES

Makes 10-12 servings

- 5 pounds russet or Yukon Gold potatoes
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 cup melted butter
- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, room temperature and cut into chunks
- 1 cup sour cream, room temperature
- Salt and pepper to taste (I use white pepper)
- Garnishes such as paprika, chopped fresh chives or parsley (optional)

To prepare the potatoes: Quarter or halve the potatoes so that chunks are equal in size. This is a good job for your preteen. Place in a large pot with enough cold water to cover by 1 inch. Add 1 tablespoon salt. Bring to a boil over high heat, reduce to medium and cook for about 20-25 minutes until tender when pierced with a fork. Drain potatoes well in a colander.

Now it's time to mash them while they are hot, using your favorite family method. If you use a ricer, work together with your child to rice the potatoes into a large bowl. If you prefer a traditional hand potato masher, pour the potatoes in the bowl and mash. Or, use an electric mixer. With all methods, add butter as you go. Next, stir in cream cheese, sour cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir well until smooth.

Taste the mixture, adding more seasoning if you wish. Sometimes we add a few shakes of Lowry's seasoning.

To store: Pour the mixture into a 9-by-13-inch baking dish, smoothing the top. Cool, cover and put into the refrigerator for up to three days.

To bake: Heat oven to 350° F. Remove potatoes from refrigerator. Bake uncovered for 45 minutes. Add garnishes and serve.

Cook's note: To enhance with garlic flavor, peel and halve 2 garlic cloves. Cook and mash with potatoes.

Grizzly Bear Mistakenly Shot And Killed By A Hunter In North Idaho

— Idaho Dept. of Fish & Game —

A male grizzly bear was mistaken for a black bear by a hunter, who reported the incident

On the morning of June 8, a nonresident hunter shot and killed a male grizzly bear he mistook for a black bear. The bear was killed in Idaho's Panhandle, north of Upper Priest Lake. After shooting the bear and identifying it as a grizzly, the hunter contacted Idaho Fish and Game and is cooperating with the ongoing investigation.

The incident serves an important reminder that grizzly bears can be found in game management units in the Panhandle, in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, and grizzlies are known to occasionally visit portions of the Clearwater Region. Hunters can refer to page 73 of the 2023 Big Game Seasons and Rules to see units where grizzlies may be found.

Grizzly bears are protected under state and federal law, and bear hunters are responsible for proper identification of their target.

All hunters are encouraged to review their bear identification skills to avoid mistaken identity. Size and color of the animal are not reliable indicators of species. It's best to look at multiple features in order to make the right call. Grizzlies typically have short, rounded ears, a dishd facial profile, a prominent shoulder hump and 2-4 inch long claws.

Hunters and others can learn more about bear identification skills and learn the difference between a defensive and predatory encounter by using Fish and Game's online resources.
